HEROIC BATAAN LINE YIELDS TO HEAVY JAP ONSLAUGHT WITH AIR, LAND FORCES

SCORCHING EARTH—This is the first picture to reach Atlanta showing how the valiant Dutch in Borneo applied the scorched-earth policy when Japanese invading hordes moved in. Here millions in oil and oil installations go up in smoke at Balikpapan, on Borneo's east coast. Fabulously rich islands of the Netherlands East Indies will yield oil for the enemy only after many months of expensive repairs.

Nipponese Bombard American Hospital, Kill Many Wounded

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Fresh troops thrown into the Battle of Bataan by the Japanese today clawed their way further into the stubbornly defended positions of the American-Filipino forces.

A late day communique from the War Department reported that the greatly outnumbered troops under Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright, fighting desperately to hold their line midway across Bataan peninsula, were being forced back slowly.

Beginning the fourth day of almost ceaseless pounding of the center of Wainwright's line, the Japanese were aided by tanks as well as intense artillery fire, aerial bombardment and strafing. Losses were heavy today on both sides.

Concentrating their assault on the front lines and rear positions on the mainland, the enemy left the fortified island of Corregidor free of aerial attack for the fourth successive day, but for the second time in little more than a week bombed a base hospital in Bataan, killing a large number of wounded soldiers who were being treated there.

The attack on the hospital was carried out this morning by three flights of heavy bombers, the department reported. After the same hospital was bombed March 30, the Japanese command in the Philippines broadcast an apology, but the department asserted that the second attack on the plainly marked building "tends to prove that both raids were intentional."

Yesterday, said an earlier communique, the defending forces were subjected to a particularly severe aerial bombardment behind the lines, and the Japanese aimed a concentrated air attack at the south coast of Bataan in an apparent effort to shatter Wainwright's vital communications with Corregidor, two miles offshore.

Two-Hour Barrage.

The enemy also directed a two-hour artillery barrage against Corregidor and Fort Hughes from land batteries on the Cavite shore of Manila bay, but the department reported that neither casualties nor damage resulted from the shelling. The guns of the forts laid down a counter-battery fire, the results of which were not reported.

One antiaircraft battery, lowering the elevation of its guns, caught an enemy amphibian plane on the water in Manila bay and destroyed it with horizontal fire.

The action reported in this morning's communique was a continuation of the furious attacks reported late yesterday, in which the Japanese infantry, supported by heavy artillery and dive bomb-

Vichy Studies Sale of Island Sugar to U. S.

VICHY, Unoccupied France, April 7.—(AP)—Marshal Petain's government was disclosed officially tonight to be negotiating the sale of sugar from Reunion Island in the Indian ocean to the United States as Axis-sponsored Paris newspapers expressed the strongest antipathy to date to Franco-American rapprochement.

One Paris editor, Jean Luchaire, of Les Nouveaux Temps, openly predicted the fall of the Vichy cabinet "at the end of this week or beginning of next—unless France has agreed to commit suicide for the benefit of President Roosevelt."

The sale of Reunion sugar, from an annual maximum supply of 88,000 metric tons, is planned to relieve the present sugar shortage in the United States, officials said. They denied that the negotiations included supplies from Martinique

Japs Continue Push in Burma To Northward

NEW DELHI, India, April 7.—(AP)—A continuing Japanese push northward up the broad, sea-level valley of the Irrawaddy river in Burma was reported today by the British, who announced the defending forces had fallen back more than 40 miles north from Prome after destroying oil and cement installation at Thayetmyo and Alanmyo.

The Japanese columns last were reported at Kama, on the west bank of the Irrawaddy, 15 miles above Prome, and at Nyaunggrinzeik on the east bank, a British communique said.

Other Japanese elements are moving northeast up the Sinjok Valley, farther east on the path to Mandalay, still more than 200 miles distant.

With fighting momentarily confined to patrol skirmishes, the British said their forces still were taking up new defense positions north of Thayetmyo and Alanmyo.

A Chinese army spokesman at Chungking said the Japanese advance up the Irrawaddy was being made with 100 trucks and a number of tanks.

He said the Chinese forces who hold the Sittang river valley, the east sector of the Burma defense lines, were engaging a Japanese striking force in the Toungoo region south of Kyibuangan. The Japanese in that area, however, were described as more intent on constructing defenses than on advancing.

The Chinese and British lines are thrown across the 100-mile wide stretch of lowland which runs almost the full length of Burma. Both the Irrawaddy and Sittang rivers flow through this depression, their watersheds separated by a range of low hills. Rough, 6,000-foot mountains protect the borders of China and India on east and west, respectfvely.

Indian Group Spurns New British Proposal

NEW DELHI, India, April 7.—(AP)—Rejection of the British program for post-war Indian independence was reported tonight to be the reiterated stand of the powerful All-India Congress party, despite a British offer to appoint an Indian native as defense minister of this country.

In the face of renewed American efforts toward an agreement and this major British concession to the Congress party's earlier contentions, new objections were raised on other points—and without the Congress party's acquiescence the entire plan is considered unlikely to succeed.

Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League, said he had been told this afternoon by Sir Stafford Cripps, British cabinet envoy to India, that "the Indian defense portfolio would not fail to be administered by a representative Indian."

Jinnah then had a talk with Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief for India, and planned to present to the Moslem League Wednesday the British plan to bring India more fully into the war effort immediately in return for full dominion status after the war.

But Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, most powerful figure in the huge Hindo All-Indian Congress party, which had raised the defense criticism in the first place, went on to another point with the flat declaration that he opposed any dominion plan omitting the peoples of the Indian states.

In the interests of these states, as distinguished from British India, and on behalf of the big Moslem minority in India, the British dominion plan provides that several separate autonomous states may be established if the people wish.

Nehru, however, contended hotly, "We have remained united in slavery and we shall remain united in freedom." He spoke at a reception given by Thany Pillay, president of the Travancore State People's Conference.

"The Japanese assertion that they are coming to India to set us free is absurd and wholly false," he said. "That is clear from Japan's misdeeds in China and Korea.

"I consider it my duty to oppose any foreign invasion of India."

Louis Johnson, head of a special American mission to India, then talked again with Nehru and with Maulana Abul Kalan Azad, president of the Congress party, and it was learned he had been in recent touch with the White House at Washington on the Indian affair.

Halifax Warns India of Action.

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, said tonight that should Britain fail to win agreement among Indian leaders on a plan for dominion status after the war "the British government would find itself obliged to do its own duty, without the assistance of co-operation of the larger organized Indian parties."

1941 Order Clarifies Defense Muddle

Umpires Make City Hub, Take In Rockdale

A four-month-old order, dated December 8, 1941, from the United States Director of Civilian Defense setting up the Atlanta Metropolitan Civilian Defense Area as the "Metropolitan District of Atlanta," yesterday was called the solution of Civilian Defense problems and wrangles in Atlanta and Fulton county.

An advisory committee of defense officials from all areas involved recommended that the report of the arbitration committee be adopted.

The arbitration committee recommended:

1. A large area, with Atlanta as the hub, must be treated as a unit in handling plans for air raid defense.

2. That area must be united under one command.

3. The office of Civilian Defense be requested to amend order of December 8, to include Rockdale county as well as DeKalb, Fulton, Cobb and Clayton counties.

4. That an advisory council, to be composed of defense officials of all municipalities and counties affected, be set up.

5. That local defense organizations be placed directly under the director of the Atlanta Metropolitan Area, and that the director of the area be paid a salary.

6. That expenses incidental to Metropoltan Atlanta Area be distributed and borne by municipalities and counties involved.

Members of the civilian defense arbitration committee met yesterday afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club at a meeting called by E. S. Papy, fifth district defense co-ordinator, who had defense officials from all counties and municipalities involved.

The order of December 8, known as administrative order No. 13, was read to those attending the meeting. Then Marion Smith, as secretary of the arbitration committee, read the committee's report and recommendations, pointing out the committee deemed it advisable to recommend to the United States director of civilian defense that Rockdale county be included in

$1,500 in Gift Shoes Leads To Larceny Count

A youth who was given an old pair of shoes, one of which contained $1,500, by Mrs. M. D. Kallfelz, of 235 Lindbergh drive, was indicted yesterday by the Fulton county grand jury on a charge of simple larceny.

The young man was believed to be under arrest in Chattanooga, where he was listed as Luther James Champion. Chattanooga police reported he had $650 in his possession.

According to the county police, Kallfelz reported his wife had not realized she had given away her husband's "bank" until several days later. On the indictment the theft was alleged to have taken place on March 26. It was reported to the police Monday. Police said Kallfelz explained he had kept his money in the shoe because he had previously lost money through bank failures.

An attache of the solicitor general's office explained yesterday that the simple larceny charge against Champion grew out of the fact that allegedly he had not, when he discovered the money in the shoe, communicated with Mrs. Kallfelz, knowing that she probably had not intended to give it to him.

Teachers' Pay Raise Chances Mighty Slim

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Harried members of the State Board of Education wrestled for three hours behind closed doors yesterday with a tactful resolution that would let the school teachers of Georgia know that salary raises are impossible.

The board members had ordered all nonmembers out into the lobby while they groped for words suitable for this desolate thought.

They had been assured by State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. that he had gotten down on his knees and peered into every nook and corner of the state treasury and, for the life of him, he couldn't find a single million dollars—to say nothing of the $3,000,000 that will be needed to give the 25 per cent raise the 22,000 teachers are expecting.

It was reported in the hallways outside, where newspaper reporters were herded, that Auditor Thrasher had even turned his own pockets inside out for the frantic board but couldn't do better than $1.48 and a streetcar token.

The remorseless reasoning of Auditor Thrasher, according to corridor rumors, reached its peak when he suggested the only way for the state of Georgia to get $3,000,000 without adding new taxes to an overtaxed public, was for Governor Talmadge to try to engage the federal income tax collector in a friendly game of Gin Rummy.

Executive Session.

These were all rumors. No one was allowed inside the doors, where the tired board members were trying to dig up ideas on how to find $3,000,000 without breaking the Talmadge tax promises.

Only one man violated the privacy of the executive session. As the members, gathered around a table, looked hopefully at the resigned Mr. Thrasher, the door to the room opened quietly and a small man, with an engaging smile, moved silently into the board room. In front of him was a black box, suspended by a strap that ran around the back of his collar.

The board members looked up in expectant astonishment. Bright thoughts raced through their worried minds that inside this black box might be just the $3,000,000 manna from heaven that they needed.

"Wanna buy some neckties—nice neckties," he urged, fingering the purported silk. "Look—you couldn't beat a number like this for 50 cents anywhere—"

One Cheerful Note.

Superintendent M. D. Collins volunteered as the mouthpiece of the board to inform the little man with the neckties that there wasn't 50 cents in the crowd and would he please get out and let them alone.

Inside the room, where the interest in 50-cent neckties was tepid, the problem of the 22,000 teachers was reapproached and only one cheerful note was sounded through the rest of the afternoon:

"The board decided," said Superintendent Collins, "that we could assure the teachers there would be no cuts in their present pay."

This morning the meeting will be resumed and a final effort made to couch a description of the depleted state of the Georgia taxpayers' pocketbook in comforting terms.

Governor Talmadge, chairman of the board, was absent from his seat at the head of the table. In

Will Not Seek Post Again, Camp Asserts

United States District Attorney Lawrence S. Camp, of Atlanta, whose term expired in February last night confirmed reports from Washington that he was not a candidate to succeed himself.

Declaring that he did "not desire to be the cause of embarrassment between the executive department and any senators," Camp said he planned to return to private practice as soon as his successor is named and confirmed by the senate.

Washington sources disclosed Camp had written President Roosevelt and Senator Russell asking that he not be considered for reappointment to his present post.

White House Silent.

Since expiration of his term, it has been assumed he would be a candidate to succeed himself. Senator Russell, to whose patronage the northern district attorney is charged, would neither deny nor confirm reports he had received a communication from Camp. His only comment was that if such a letter had been written it was up to the Atlanta United States attorney to make it public. No comment was available from the White House on the matter.

Camp was first appointed United States attorney during the early days of the first Roosevelt administration and subsequently was given another term of four years. Four years ago he was a New Deal-supported candidate for the senate against Senator George.

A welter of rumors concerning Camp since failure of his reappointment to come through included one that he was preparing

Two Men Indicted in Burning Of Pickens Official's Home

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

JASPER, Ga., April 7.—B. N. Coleman, 44, Jasper plumber, and Bernard Howell, 35, electrician and son of J. D. Howell, Pickens county tax collector, today were indicted by the Pickens county grand jury on charges of arson in connection with the burning of Pickens County Road Commissioner H. Grady Jones' $10,000 summer home located near here.

The home contained 17 rooms and at the time it was burned on January 6 of this year it had never been occupied.

Coleman and Howell, Sheriff J. M. Poole, of Pickens county, said tonight, were taken into custody soon after the home burned and later released under $3,000 bond each.

According to Sheriff Poole, Coleman admitted taking part in the crime, but stated that he was under the influence of liquor at the time. Sheriff Poole further quoted Coleman as saying that he and Howell originally did not plan to burn the house, but only wanted to get pictures of it, which were to be used as political weapons aganist Jones. Sheriff Poole said Coleman told him the fire was started by pouring two gallons of gasoline on the floor of one of the rooms, and that entrance was gained by kicking out a French door.

Sheriff Poole said Howell stated that he did not know anything about the burning of Jones' home.

Solicitor General H. Grady Vandiviere, of the Blue Ridge circuit, said that pictures of the Jones' home were actually made and that a truck whose license plate numbers were the same as those of a truck owned by Coleman could be seen in a picture he would present as evidence. Sheriff Poole said that Coleman admitted the truck was his.

Superior Court Clerk Robert S. Turner said that the trial probably would get under way Wednesday. Foreman of the grand jury is J. W. Patterson, of Marble Hill, and clerk is Professor T. W. Holley, superintendent of Pickens county schools.

Jones, along with B. Frank Whelchel, several years ago was charged by a federal jury with selling postal offices. Jones proved himself innocent of the charge, as did Whelchel.

Making of Consumer Durable Goods To Stop for Duration

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The manufacture of most consumers' durable goods will be halted for the duration of the war by May 31, Chairman Donald M. Nelson, of the War Production Board, reported today in announcing two imminent new orders—a civilian construction stop-order and a ban on the use of steel in hundreds of civilian articles.

These two actions, added to the swift succession of production curtailments and stoppages which will be almost complete by May 31, are of equal importance to "the winning of a major battle," Nelson told a press conference.

The building order will suspend nondefense construction and stop the use in building materials of war-essential metals, Nelson said. The steel order will not only prohibit the use of iron and steel in a multitude of common items, but also will ban the use of other metals and scarce plastics as substitutes.

Nelson Optimistic.

The normally cautious Nelson gave an unexpectedly optimistic view of the speed and scope of industry's transition from peacetime gadget-making to the output of the implements of war.

"I am more pleased with the conversion effort at this time than at any time since I've been on the job," he said.

The meaning of the transition to the average citizen is a "sound but lean" civilian economy, the production chief reported. "We don't know how lean it can be, but it will get leaner and leaner as time goes on."

The consumers' durable goods industries whose doom he sounded are those producing such characteristics elements of the American standard of living as automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners and other articles having a relatively long life. All the articles named are under stop-production orders.

"History will record whether we have moved too fast or too slow," Nelson said with reference to the sweeping change in this country's industrial complexion.

Difficult Adjustment.

"It is worth bearing in mind that during the entire course of the first World War, not a single limitation order was issued which completely prohibited the output of any civilian product.

"In August of 1918, or a year and four months after the United States entered the war, an agreement was made between the automobile industry and the War Industries board to limit the output of the auto industry for the second half of 1918 to a quarter of its normal output."

By comparison, an informal tabulation revealed that production already has been halted in five major industries and production ordered stopped in 15 others.

Nelson acknowledged that "industrial casualties"—plants forced to shut down for inability to convert or for lack of materials—would be inevitable.

WPB's effort will be to make the casualties as few as possible, Nelson added, but he conceded "the next two or three months will be a period of difficult adjustment for the nation in general and the industrial producers and employes engaged in the operations which are restricted."

Consumers will find that many items formerly easily obtainable will be entirely lacking or available only through rationing.

Textile Parley Urged To Back War Program

Expert Tells Yarn Group Industry's Conversion Will Come Soon.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 7.—(AP)—Members of the carded yarn group heard Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, of New York, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, predict at a special meeting here today that a "drastic conversion program" for the textile industry would be issued within two weeks by the War Production Board.

He expressed confidence, however, that this conversion would not result in rationing of textiles although probably bringing about severe restriction of supplies to nonessential uses.

The WPB, Dr. Murchison said, has not yet decided whether this program will be made mandatory.

The spinners were told emphatically the industry now must devote itself to the war effort.

The speaker bluntly warned the spinners that "I am getting worried over the cotton supply," and said consumption this year likely would total 11,500,000 bales.

"We will come to August 1 with a 10,000,000-bale carryover, of which 4,000,000 bales will be extremely low grade," he declared. "Of good cotton, there will be only a normal carryover and the burdensome surplus we had several years ago will have completely disappeared.

"Also, I am worried over this year's crop. There will be shortages of fertilizer, insecticides and farm labor. The crop possibly will be actually under domestic consumption.

"In 1943 we will be facing a very real shortage of cotton."

Dr. Murchison expressed the belief that the prospective conversion program would not affect employment in the mills but would affect individual consumers.

"As looms are converted to fabrics necessary for the armed forces," he commented, "smaller supplies will be available for civilians."

Hitler Hurls Tanks Built for Summer Against Reds

By EDDY GILMORE.

KUIBYSHEV, U. S. S. R., April 7.—(AP)—Soviet airmen and ground batteries destroyed 79 German planes yesterday to boost their nine-day total to 494 Nazi craft against 103 Russian losses for this period, the Russians announced officially tonight.

The latest figures given in tonight's Moscow communique indicated a slackening in the furious pace of the aerial warfare which reached a peak over the weekend when the Russians listed 221 Nazi planes destroyed in the air and on the ground in two days. Yesterday's Soviet losses were placed at 19 planes.

As for the situation on the land front, the night communique again said there were no substantial changes in positions.

A communique supplement said that on Monday the Red air force destroyed or damaged a number of German tanks, armored cars and 100 other motor vehicles, smashed a railway train and cut to pieces two Nazi infantry companies.

Khaki-painted German tanks thrown into the fighting against the Russians were singled out as fresh evidence that continued heavy blows by the Red army were forcing Hitler to use up material he had meant to save for a big spring offensive.

The tanks were manufactured as late as February when Hitler's factories were going at top speed to equip the new German armies, said Pravda, Communist party organ, and instead of being painted white for winter fighting bore their summer war paint.

Military dispatches reported the capture of 30 communities and a large railway station on the central front, as Russian claims of German planes destroyed indicated that the heaviest aerial battles of the year were being fought, probably around Lake Ilmen.

Red Star, the army organ, indicated that some of the heavy air fighting had taken place over Murmansk, reporting 119 raids on that far northern supply port since the start of the war, and a very big attack on March 24 when 200 aircraft fought over the harbor. Red Star said 15 German planes were destroyed and the rest forced to jettison their bombs in the bay and on the cliffs. The attack was termed a "big fiasco."

Meanwhile, the first United States plane in its war paint to reach Soviet Russia landed United States Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley at the airport here.

As the big plane with its red, white and blue insignia rolled to a stop, Admiral Standley stepped out into a foot of slush and remarked, "Well, it's good to be here. We've been on the way 19 days."

He was wearing a fedora, a strange-looking hat in this climate, and while a biting April wind reddened his ears he received the greetings of American embassy personnel and newspapermen, representatives of the Russian foreign office, Chinese, Polish and Netherlands diplomats, and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, the British ambassador.

He said he would present his credentials soon in Moscow where Premier Vyacheslav Molotov was receiving the new Japanese ambassador, Naotake Saito, today.

With the arrival of Admiral Standley, the United States is represented in Russia by an ambassador for the first time since last October when Laurence A. Steinhardt left to take a new post in Turkey.

Knox Announces a Big Decline In Sinkings Caused by U-Boats

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—A sharp decline in the number of U-boat attacks off the Atlantic coast was reported today by Secretary Knox, who said that recently adopted methods of combating the submersibles might be responsible.

He did not, however, overlook the possibility the drop might be due in part at least to the German practice of sending out submarines in waves, with intervening periods in which few U-boats are actually operating far from their bases.

However, Knox pointed out that last week there were but two attacks in the coastal area—one upon a tanker and the other on a towboat and its barges. During the week the Navy announced 14 attacks but 12 of these occurred before March 29 or in Caribbean waters, not covered by the secretary's announcement.

In addition, Knox revealed "very careful study" is being given to the whole problem of operating the merchant marine. No decisions have yet been reached, he said, but a possibility remained the Navy might take charge of ships assigned to "long voyages." There had been some difficulty in manning ships, he said.

Some high-ranking naval officers have complained a large percentage of ship losses was due to the failure of ship masters to carry out naval instructions, regarding darkening ship and the course to be steered.

Knox said today, however, the Navy was now getting "very complete" compliance with its orders that shipping stick to certain well-defined coastal lanes. He intimated many coastwise vessels were following a practice of entering harbor at night, for the submarines have been most active during the hours of darkness.

Australian, U. S. Air Forces Smash at Lae

Jap Craft in New Guinea Bombarded on Third Successive Day.

By C. YATES McDANIEL.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 7.—(AP)—For the third successive day Royal Australian Air Force and American planes smashed at the Japanese in New Guinea areas today, swooping in a low-level attack on Lae where they planted sticks of bombs on grounded aircraft and the airdrome buildings and runways.

Correspondents at Port Moresby, Australian base in New Guinea, said fires were started by the attack and that the damage inflicted in the three successive days of attacks must have been extensive.

The Allied bombers were accompanied by fighting planes which shot down the lone Japanese fighter who tried to interfere with the attack. He crashed into the sea.

Meanwhile, Navy and Munitions Minister J. M. Makin declared that "Australia never stood in a better position than she does today" to repel a Japanese invasion.

Supply Council.

The Allied supply council, holding what Supply Minister John Beasley described as its most important meeting yet, adopted a plan today to co-ordinate supplies and equipment for United States and Australian troops from materiel available here and that arriving from America under the lend-lease program.

General Douglas MacArthur, Major General Richard H. Sutherland and W. S. Wasserman, chief of the United States lend-lease mission in Australia, attended the session and informed the council of the amount of United States equipment in this country and gave an estimate of supplies expected.

Beasley said scope of the supply council has been widened to include control of shipping, land transport and distribution of medical equipment.

Army Minister Francis M. Forde announced that he had ordered an official report from soldiers who escaped from Rabaul in New Britain and brought stories that Australian prisoners had been pinioned, shot and bayoneted by the Japanese.

Studies Report.

Forde said he would study the report before deciding what action Australia would take. Three Australian soldiers said they were the sole survivors of a party of six trapped and captured at Rabaul.

In other war moves, Hubertus J. Van Mook, Netherlands East Indies lieutenant governor, announced that the nucleus of the Dutch Air Force will remain in Australia, supplies which arrived too late for the battle of Java will be diverted to Australian and American forces, and a number of Dutch officers attached to the staff of General MacArthur and the Allied Naval Command.

Errol G. Knox, managing director of the Melbourne Argus was appointed by the Australian government to the post of director general of Army public relations.

CAP Moving Army Supplies On East Coast

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The Civil Air Patrol has established a courier service on the east coast to transport Army equipment and supplies, the Office of Civilian Defense said today.

Regular Army pilots and planes, formerly assigned to the transport work, have been released for more important duties, OCD disclosed, by the use of five CAP planes based at Harrisburg Pa. During the first 20 days of operation, the five ships flew 2,277,000 pound-miles of cargo from Maine to Florida in 270 hours of flying time.

Private Planes for Sub patrol Indorsed

ORLANDO, Fla., April 7.—(AP)—Warren C. M. Lessing, of Port Newark, N. J., executive officer of the New Jersey civil air patrol, today indorsed a proposal to utilize the 25,000 privately owned planes in the country in an intensive submarine patrol along the Atlantic coast line.

Rare Brain Operation Performed on Georgian

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 7. (AP)—A rare operation to relieve total paralysis by grafting a temple muscle on the affected portion of the brain was performed by Dr. Frederic E. Kredel on B. C. Hodges, of Sumter county, Georgia, it was learned here.

It was the seventh such successful operation by Dr. Kredel and the patient was reported "doing very well."

Hodges suffered cerebral thrombosis, which resulted in paralysis of the motor centers of the brain. The surgeon built a sort of blood pipeline around that area in the brain which had become clogged, using muscle from the temple which gets a plentiful supply of blood.

One end of the muscle was detached. A window about the size of a silver dollar was cut into the brain and the muscle slipped through and fastened to the affected region. Normal skin later will cover both the hole and the muscle.

Freed Convict Indicted Here On Ten Counts

Case Brings Protest Against Pardoning of Offenders.

Raymond L. Sisson, pardoned murderer, yesterday was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on eight counts of burglary and two of robbery.

Sisson's arrest last week by Detectives Nahlik and Coppenger drew a protest against the pardon racket from Solicitor General Boykin, who condemned indulgent treatment of hardened criminals.

One of the indictments against Sisson named William L. Turnipseed as his confederate. They were accused of theft from the filling station of Frank Beall, 398 West Peachtree street, of an automobile and five tires valued at $1,070; the filling station of C. M. Dodd, 132 Ponce de Leon avenue, of property valued at $92 and that of Alvin Burroughs, 311 Ponce de Leon, of property valued at $13. In another indictment the same pair is accused of robbing Robert Archer, of 1144 Hermon street, S. W., of $95.

Sisson, in another indictment, was accused of five counts of burglary, including that of the Erlanger theater last January 17, when the $375 proceeds from the sale of tickets was taken.

Despite his criminal record dating back to 1919, Sisson was pardoned in 1936 by Governor Talmadge from a life sentence given him for the murder of a prison guard.

Parolee On Way Back to Prison

Grady Osborne, recently paroled on condition that he enter the armed forces, was on his way back to prison yesterday for a good, long stay, unless he can get more executive clemency. Convicted in Fulton superior court in two cases involving fictitious checks, he was sentenced to serve two to five years on each charge, both to follow completion of the one-to-two-year sentence from which he was paroled and a 12-month suspended sentence.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey ignored the recommendation of the jury that the fictitious check cases be treated as misdemeanors.

Revisions Are Sought In Cigar Tax Brackets

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Representatives of the cigar-making industry, and its union, suggested to congress today that revisions be made in the cigar tax brackets.

Carl Swisher, Jacksonville, Fla., representative of a popular-priced cigar, recommended to the house ways and means committee that the present tax on cigars ranging up to 5 cents be broken down into brackets of less than 3 cents, from 3 cents to 5 cents and 5 cents each.

WPB Revises Freezing Order On Bicycles

Frames of More Than 17 Inches To Be Affected by Move.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The War Production Board, extended its bicycle freezing order today to take in all bicycles having frames of more than 17 inches.

The original freeze order applied to cycles having frames larger than 19 inches, and was intended to stop sales and deliveries of all adult bikes. But it developed that an 18-inch "camel-back" frame—one having a double bar—was as well adapted to adult use as the conventional 20-inch "diamond frame."

Adult bicycles for women, moreover, are about the same size as the "camel-back" frames. Both are brought under the sales freeze by the new amendment.

Children's bicycles, defined as those with frames of 17 inches and under, are not affected by the freeze order, but their production was halted April 1.

Production of the Victory model, a light-weight adult bike stripped of gadgets and brightwork, has not been halted, but the sale and delivery of Victory bicycles is prohibited by the freezing order.

"Plans are now being made for the orderly disposition of bicycles now frozen and those being produced," WPB said, "so that defense workers will have first chance to get them, with other civilian needs coming next."

JAPANESE RAID.

LONDON, April 7.—(AP)—A broadcast Japanese communique heard by Reuters tonight said the same Japanese units which raided Colombo Sunday had attacked a British naval unit in the Bay of Bengal.

Further Slash For Gasoline Supplies Seen

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Further curtailment of gasoline supplies for motorists in the east and Pacific northwest appears inevitable, Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum co-ordinator, said tonight.

He declined to discuss the extent of any new curtailment but oil sources indicated that supplies at filling stations would be reduced, probably within a week, by 33 1-3 per cent below normal as compared with the 20 per cent cut now in force.

"It is perfectly clear, in the light of the critical stocks and transportation situation," Davies said, "that the 20 per cent reduction is not enough. The curtailment will have to go deeper than that."

He gave assurance the government and the oil industry were working "day and night" to bring about relief for the transportation emergency caused by submarine sinkings and war diversion of tankers.

"When moving oil into this market means the loss of life and the loss of ships," he said in an interview, "we are not justified in providing anything more than the essential minimum."

Cat Has 8 Lives Left; Loses 9th in Ice Box

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 7.—(AP)—This is a tidbit about a cat named "Monkey," which probably has eight good lives left with the "ninth" on cold storage.

Monkey lives in her master's grocery store. She got lost and the master looked high and low for her. Opening the store's ice box, he found Monkey rather stiff but apparently unharmed despite her hours in the cold.

German, Dutch Broadcasters Are Silenced

RAF To Continue Deadly Assaults on Industry of Nazis.

LONDON, Wednesday, April 8. (AP)—The Berlin, Luxemburg and Hilversum radios went off the air early today, an indication usually that the RAF is operating over Germany or German-occupied territory. The Hilversum station is in the Netherlands.

In fair weather or foul, the RAF is going to continue its destructive assaults upon German war industries, a well-posted informant said, citing Sunday night's raid despite severe icing conditions upon the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

German arms production already has been crippled by the initial heavy blows of the spring air offensive, said this source, and, he added, "this is just the beginning."

German raiders hit back at England last night, dropping high explosive and fire bombs on an east coast town.

One Nazi raider was reported shot down.

The air ministry declared the recent RAF raids on the Renault and Matford Motor Works near Paris had destroyed the equivalent of equipment for five armored and mechanized divisions.

"In effect one of the major tank battles of the war had been won by the RAF in about six hours at the cost of four bombers and 25 men," the air ministry said. "This is of paramount importance to the Allied armies of both the Russian and Libyan fronts."

The two factories were producing about 70 trucks daily as well as many tanks and other vehicles for the Germans.

The ministry said this production had been stopped for at least a year, and some of it for the duration of the war because irreplaceable machine tools had been ruined.

Admiral Fiske Succumbs at 87

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Bradley Allen Fiske, 87, retired naval officer whose heroism on the seas was second only to his genius for inventing efficiency devices for the warships that sailed them, died last night.

Failing health had caused his confinement to his Waldorf-Astoria suite for two months and for more than a year he had been unable to leave the hotel. A daughter, Caroline Harper Fiske, survives.

In the 42-year span of his naval career, Fiske was a combination sailor - fighter - inventor-strategist. No dreamy-eyed armchair admiral, he foresaw even before the World War the value of a naval air force and fought tooth-and-nail for it.

It was for the Navy that he invented, among other things, the aerial torpedo, the radio-guided torpedo plane, the electrically-turned battleship turret, an electric range-finder, an electric ammunition hoist.

Senate Passes Modified Bill CurbingProfits

Joint Committee To Rework Measure Before It Is Effective.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—A modified measure for limiting war profits emerged from the senate late today attached to the latest $19,212,773,260 appropriation bill.

Before it actually will apply to the billions of dollars of present and future contracts, the profit restriction faces further modification by a joint senate-house committee that must adjust many differences between the two chambers over the huge wartime appropriation.

The senate approved it, 40 to 21, after hours of angry discussion and only after assurances that the senate-house conference would have broad authority to rewrite the entire section if war production officials and congressional leaders can agree upon a new plan.

Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, lost by a standing vote an attempt to suspend the rules in order to consider riders that would outlaw union initiation fees on defense jobs and empower the President to freeze all prices and wages as of a certain date.

Then on a voice vote the senate passed the appropriation. More than $18,000,000,000 of the funds would go to the Army, with most of this for expansion of the air force, including 31,000 additional airplanes. Funds also were provided to supply and house an Army of 3,600,000 men by the end of this year.

The profits provision adopted by the senate would grant the secretaries of war or navy or the Maritime Commission chairman authority to require that all future contracts and subcontracts in excess of $100,000 include an agreement for renegotiations to eliminate excessive profits, and retention by the government of part of the payments to cover any profit refunds that might develop.

U. S. Contracts To Buy Bolivian Copper Output

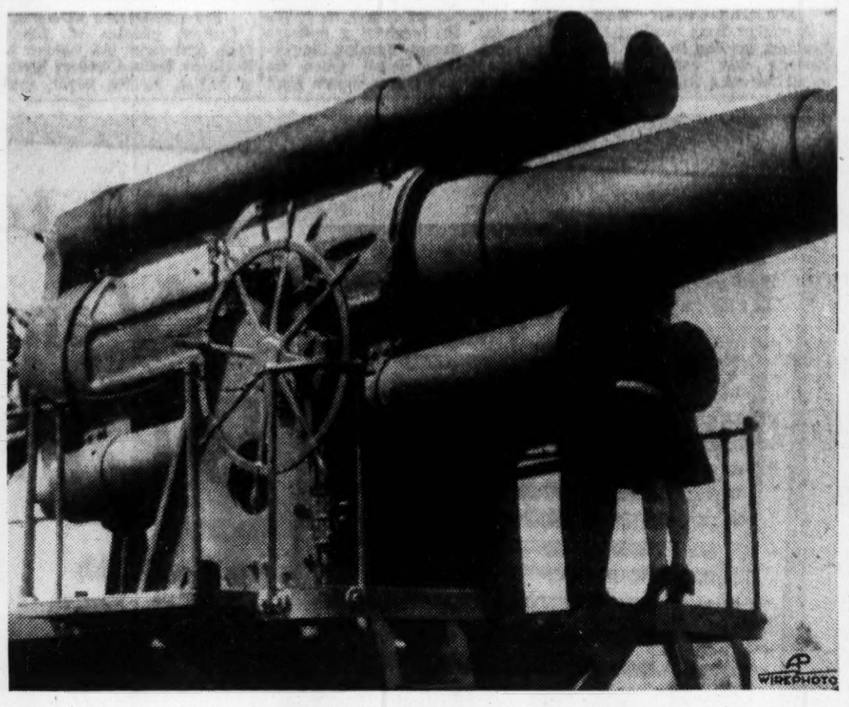

LA PAZ, Bolivia, April 7.—(AP) The Bolivian foreign office announced tonight that an agreement had been reached in Washington whereby the United States contracted to buy Bolivia's entire copper production which is expected to total 6,500 tons annually.

The contract with the United States Metals Company also called for the acquisition of 1,800 tons of copper now on hand, and the deal was said to be similar to one between Chile and the United States.

Teachers' Pay Raise Chances Are Mighty Slim

The meeting yesterday was in an effort to express in some fashion the results of a dress rehearsal that had been held quietly in the Dixie Ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel Monday night. Governor Talmadge, it is said, was at that caucus and he had left his collaborators on state education with the thought:

"Talk to Thrasher in the morning. He might be able to help."

Must Watch Nickels.

Thrasher couldn't.

The state auditor just laid the problem of state finances before the board. The only way the state can continue to operate on its present budget, he assured the committee, would be by watching every nickel and dime that would be spent.

The resolution to be drawn up this morning, it was said, would promise the teachers that every effort would be made between now and September to do something for the pay schedule that runs between a minimum of $40 and a peak of $80.

Governor Talmadge, it is said, had told the members:

"I have had to pay off $3,900,000 in back teachers' salaries left by the previous administration and about $700,000 in debts on school textbooks. I could have granted a proportionate raise in teachers' pay if it hadn't been for those items. I don't see how the state can increase the teachers' pay without raising taxes.

The question of pay raises for the teachers is a hot potato for the leaders of the state government in an election year.

The question is expected to arise at the teachers' annual convention in Savannah April 23, 24, 25, and the Governor is scheduled to speak at one of the meetings.

A statement by Attorney General Ellis Arnall, a candidate for Governor, appeared as an advertisement in the Journal of the Georgia Education Association. The advertisement declared that in view of the record-breaking revenues of the state during the past fiscal year, teachers should have been granted pay increases.

Early yesterday morning, before the meeting and before the Governor left the capitol, Arnall was called into the Governor's office. The Governor at the time was conferring with members of the finance committee and Thrasher. When Arnall emerged, he insisted he had been called in merely for a discussion of legal matters unrelated to the teachers pay problem.

A resolution authorizing the state to use vocational training funds to pay half the salaries of home economics teachers employed by local school authorities during the summer months was adopted by the board.

The resolution said that many agricultural teachers have been called into the Army and that the home economics teachers were needed to supervise operation of many of the 400 school community canning plants.

A free school textbook budget for the next fiscal year providing for expenditure of $800,000 also was approved by the board. This is virtually the same amount spent in the present fiscal year.

No action was taken on the request of a group of Atlanta Negroes who asked that Negroes be included in the defense training program of the vocational division.

State Superintendent of Schools Collins said "We haven't found anybody that will use them yet." He added it would be a waste of money to train them if they could not obtain employment afterwards.

New History Ready.

A new 608-page history of Georgia, to be used in the state's elementary schools, will be ready for the fall term, the board was told.

For the last four months seven Georgians have been working on the manuscript, which will have 100 four-color and 100 black and white illustrations.

The board voted to name it "The Story of Georgia—a History of Its Life and Growth."

Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge, a board member, said she had read part of the history written by Henry McIntosh, editor of The Albany Herald. She said he had written about the people of Georgia and considered his description the best she had ever read.

"I'm sure you all will like it," she said. "Mr. McIntosh is a wonderful writer."

The board has ordered 75,000 copies of the history at a cost of $80,250.

Dixon Urges Increase For Alabama Teachers

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 7. (AP)—Methods by which he said Alabama teachers could be given 25 per cent pay increases during the next scholastic year were outlined today by Governor Frank M. Dixon, who declared that necessary funds could be made available without a special session of the legislature.

The Governor's office made public a letter to members of the state education board, in which he urged "deepest consideration" to his suggested plan "to the end that the justifiable salary increases outlined should be put into effect for the school year 1942-43."

He asserted that existing laws empowered the board to make additional funds available for that purpose—one directing it to allot minimum school program costs, the other setting up a borrowing corporation which may anticipate funds which "will certainly be available."

Dixon said in his letter he planned to ask a 10 per cent increase in teachers' pay from a general fund surplus which he said would be on hand at the beginning of the next fiscal year, October 1. An additional 15 per cent, he asserted, could be made available from a surplus in the special educational trust fund.

to run against his old political ally, Russell. A persistent report is that Camp intends to run for Governor.

First indication that he would not be a candidate for reappointment came from Camp Monday night in an address before the Coweta county bar association when he said he was "soon going out of office."

Camp has been in politics virtually since high school days. He was born in Fairburn, Ga., in 1898 and was admitted to the bar at the age of 17. Before he was 21 he was named city attorney of Fairburn and then Campbell county district attorney. By the time he was old enough to vote, he was elected to the state assembly. When Russell was elected Governor, he appointed Camp attorney general. After Russell's election to the senate, he recommended Camp for district attorney.

CIO Foregoes Premium Pay For Holidays

'War Conference' Approves Executive Body's Stand at Detroit.

DETROIT, April 7.—(AP)—A war conference of United Automobile Workers (CIO) delegates tonight approved unanimously, by voice vote, an executive board recommendation that premium pay for weekend and holiday work be waived for the duration.

At the same time, the delegates, representing more than a half-million workers in automobile and aircraft plants in the nation, demanded that manufacturers of war material be compelled to make "equal sacrifices."

Extra Pay Foregone.

Acceptance of the executive board's proposal to forego extra pay for Saturday, Sunday and holiday work except when such work constitutes a sixth of seventh consecutive working day followed a day-long session which at times became boisterous when opponents displayed reluctance to waive premium wages unless "excess profits" were banned war manufacturers by congress or the President.

Earlier, President Roosevelt, in a letter to the conference, informed the UAW-CIO that premium pay "puts a brake on" wartime production and "helps our enemies."

In addition to waiving premium pay, the conference reaffirmed a pledge to refrain from strikes or work stoppages and to submit all disputes to mediation for the war's duration, agreed to increase production by "all means available," and urged that arms plants be operated on a 24-hour day 7-day week basis through establishment of swing shifts."

Victory Program.

The board submitted, for congressional action, what it termed a "victory through equality of sacrifice" program, proposing wartime laws to limit family or individual incomes to $25,000 a year and war production profits to 3 per cent on invested capital, in return for which, it said, labor would agree that all wages for time over 40 hours a week be paid in special non-negotiable defense bonds.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter, addressed to UAW-CIO President R. J. Thomas, stated that "every factory and every shipyard should be working seven days a week, night and day."

AFL, CIO Renew No-Strike Pledge

PITTSBURGH, April 7.—(AP)—The chiefs of the AFL and CIO, appearing together on a public platform for the first time since the split in labor's ranks in 1936, renewed tonight a pledge of labor peace, promised that labor would stay on the job until the war is won and spoke out against those whom they charged with attacking labor.

The words of William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, were echoed by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, government's representatives, at a joint AFL-CIO rally in Syria mosque.

McNutt deplored what he termed "libels against labor" and declared that labor "by voluntarily waiving the right to strike, has assured the nation of uninterrupted production of war materials as far as labor is concerned."

Since Saturday morning there has been scarcely any pause in the Japanese assaults against Wainwright's positions, and the attacks have been supported by the heaviest artillery and aerial bombardment yet employed by the enemy in the Philippines.

The department reported that General Douglas MacArthur, who left the Philippines last month to assume the United Nations supreme command in Australia, had a long conference today with Dr. Hubertus van Mook, acting head of the Netherlands Indies government.

Plans for future Dutch participation in the war in the southwest Pacific were discussed, and van Mook reported that two Dutch forces of considerable size, well supplied with food and munitions, still were fighting against the Japanese in the interior of Java.

ATTACKING TYPEWRITER FROM NEW ANGLE—These pretty Atlanta girls, Betty Smith and Pearl Clark, tear a machine down at a local shop, the first to hire women for mechanical jobs such as this. Uncle Sam is depleting the service department personnel and young girls are being hired to fill their jobs. The boys have one consolation, though. Some of the girls have promised to wed them and give them back their jobs when they return from the fighting front.

Repair Work On Typewriters Done by Girls

By PAUL JONES.

If the "F" on your typewriter won't print or the ribbon becomes entangled in the machine, don't be surprised if a pretty young miss in slacks answers your call for help and handles the dirty machine with the deftness of a skilled man.

This completely new idea of girls repairing typewriters has been started here in Atlanta.

At present there are four girls learning the typewriter mechanic's trade, but officials look for more and more of the weaker sex to forsake nail polish and spotless complexion for the fascinating job of tearing up a typewriter, as draft boards are fast depleting their personnel.

Officials at the company are tickled pink over the work being done by the girls. They are better adapted to this kind of work than the men are, they say.

One in particular holds the admiration of the "front office." She's Betty Smith, a pretty little red-headed girl, who formerly worked as a "tester" in a textile mill lab. She is working in Atlanta now so that she might study foreign languages to fit herself to be an interpreter. She only has been there a short while, but she knows all the small pieces which go to make up a writing machine already.

And when the boys come back from "over there," they will find a wife and a job waiting for them—if they want both.

For this group of pretty girls, who are taking the places of men in the service department of the Royal Typewriter Company, have decided they will do mechanical work for the duration, and if the boys are willing when they return, they will marry them, thus furnishing returning soldiers a job, but keeping it in the family.

Brazil Will Arm Merchant Ships

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 7.—(AP) The Brazilian government was reported to have decided today to arm all merchant ships heavily and order them to defend themselves against Axis submarines following the disclosure of the loss of the fifth ship flying this republic's flag.

A high shipping sources said the merchant fleet also would sail blacked out all night. More than 100 Brazilian lives have been lost in Axis submarine action so far.

SCOUT DELEGATES.

LAGRANGE, Ga., April 7.—Attending the regional Girl Scout council meeting this week in Savannah, from Wednesday to Saturday, will be Mrs. J. H. the metropolitan district of Atlanta.

Those attending the meeting unanimously agreed that they probably would be bound by order No. 13, but that they were not in a position to obligate their municipalities or counties to any expense. They agreed, however, to report back to their organizations, and that a future meeting be held to work out a plan of appointing a director and prorating the expenses of the defense setup.

Immediately following the meeting, Papy left to meet with Charles H. Murchison, civilian defense director for the fourth area, informed him of the action, and requested him to immediately seek amendment to order No. 13 to include Rockdale county in the district.

Order No. 13, in full, follows:

"December 8, 1941.

"Administrative Order No. 13 (Revised)

"Establishing Atlanta Metropolitan Area.

"1. Under authority conferred by executive order of the President dated May 20, 1941, creating the Office of Civilian Defense and in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 10, Administrative Order No. 2, of this office, the Atlanta Metropolitan Defense Area is hereby created and its extent and status defined as follows:

"a. The Atlanta Metropolitan Civilian Defense Area will include the area described by the Bureau of the Census of the United States Department of Commerce taken from the 16th census of the United States, 1940, described as the 'Metropolitan District of Atlatna.' (Series Ph-1, No. 28), published March 24, 1941, which has a population of 422,294, and which includes the entire City of Atlanta and contiguous designated minor civil divisions of Fulton county, Clayton county, DeKalb county and Cobb county in Georgia.

"b. A co-ordinator of defense will be appointed by the U. S. Director of Civilian Defense. He will be subject to the policies and orders of the state director in accordance with Administrative Order No. 2 of this office. Accordingly, he will work under the direction of and make reports to the State Defense Council as set forth in Administrative Order No. 2.

"c. An Advisory Council of Defense including representatives from the State of Georgia and the chairman of the County Council of each of the above named counties, will advise and assist the co-ordinator of the Atlanta Metropolitan Civilian Defense Area. Where no county councils have been designated, the State Council of Defense may include in substitution therefor the equivalent number of municipalities that have local defense councils.

"(Signed) U. S. Director of Civilian Defense."

48-Hour Week Produces More Than 60 Hours, Roosevelt Says

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's studies of the efficiency of workmen have led him to the conclusion that a 48-hour week is more productive than a 60-hour week.

Surveys here, in Great Britain and on the European continent have shown, he said today, that a man working 60 hours produces less than one working 48. That, he told a press conference, was a fact which the American people should examine and get into their heads.

He added that Henry Ford, after investigating the question, had said that more than 44 or 48 hours' work a week did not increase the number of things produced by the individual workers.

The question of working hours has provided one of the hottest of wartime controversies. For weeks a drive has been on in congress to suspend for the duration of the war, the provisions of the wage-hour law compelling the payment of time and a half for more than 40 hours' work in a week.

Without referring to the congressional dispute, Mr. Roosevelt said that his studies of the wage problem were making progress. He intimated that there might be an announcement on the subject soon, but would not say when. He did, however, provide what he termed a clue to the direction in which the studies were leading.

In terms of the average man, woman and child, he said, two things were apparent:

1. The average man is rightly concerned in time of war with the question of what it costs to support himself and his family.

2. The great majority of the people want to do all they can to turn out the things that are needed for the war.

As a corollary, he said, he had been examining studies of the output of the human being. He went on to make his statement that between 48 and 60 hours of work a week lay a point of diminishing returns.

In answer to a question, he said he did not favor proposals that bonuses be paid to the more efficient workmen. He was opposed to the piecework system, in time of peace as well as in time of war, he said, and felt that workmen did not need the incentive of a bonus to increase their production in wartime.

Sales Tax Plan Still Is Without Approval of F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he was still not inclined toward a sales tax to help finance the war.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked at his press conference whether he had figured what his taxes would be under the Treasury's recommendations for $7,600,000,000 in new revenue, to be raised chiefly through increased personal and corporation income levies, excess profits levies and excise taxes.

He replied that he had not figured them for next year; that they were bad enough now.

"Do they incline you toward a sales tax?" he was asked.

No, he responded, in spite of personal hardships.

The President's view on a general sales tax—which has gained favor in some congressional quarters as a substitute for the Treasury's recommendations—came at about the same time that CIO officials urged a house committee to reject the sales proposal.

Philip Murray, CIO president, in a statement read to the Ways and Means Committee, strongly opposed a sales tax as inflationary and suggested that the corporation excess profits tax computations be revised to "remedy the vicious abuses on war contracts now being exposed by the committees of congress."

Julius Bemspek, general secretary-treasurer of the United Electrical and Machine Workers of America (CIO), proposed that federal personal income tax rates be placed "at or near" 100 per cent above the level of $100,000 annually.

"That is more than we pay our President," he said. "It is more than we pay our top military personnel; and there can be no sound case for any individual's claiming that he is worth more to the nation than, say, $100,000 per year."

MacArthur Baptized by Atlanta Pastor

Record Shows Dr. Tupper Performed Rites in Little Rock.

The late Dr. T. C. Tupper, former rector of old St. Philip's Episcopal church, long before it became a cathedral, was the minister who baptized General Douglas MacArthur, Mrs. C. V. Hohenstein, 335 Sixth street, N. E., a daughter of Dr. Tupper, said yesterday.

General MacArthur was baptized in Christ's church at Little Rock, while a small child.

Mrs. Hohenstein, while looking through her father's records yesterday, ascertained the fact that her father performed the rites for the infant who is now commander of all Allied forces in the Pacific.

Dr. Tupper came to Atlanta from Little Rock to become rector of St. Philip's. He later served as chaplain of the federal penitentiary and died while in that office.

Noland Tupper, with the State Highway Department, is a son of Dr. Tupper.

Much Land Is Broken By Hancock Farmers

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

SPARTA, Ga., April 7.—Hancock county farmers plowed more land during the clear weather of last week than they had been able to turn over since Christmas, according to County Agent Dave Dyer and they expect to keep at it until they have their crops planted. Although they are getting a late start, the farmers feel encouraged over the prospects of receiving a good price for cotton this fall and expect to have peanuts as a new crop to help them out.

The larger farmers are using tractors to get the land ready to plant while the faithful mule is the sole dependence of others.

College Park Woman Hit by Train, Killed

Mrs. James Muse Stepped Into Engine's Path, Witnesses Say.

Mrs. James Muse, of 314 East Yale avenue, College Park, was killed yesterday afternoon when she stepped into the path of a northbound Central of Georgia train at the John Wesley avenue crossing, College Park police reported.

Patrolman David H. Bell, who was only a block from the crossing and looking at the train at the time of the accident, said other witnesses told him Mrs. Muse alighted from a trolley at John Wesley and Main street, where the line ends, and apparently without looking up walked onto the tracks. Patrolman Bell said Mrs. Muse was dragged about 200 feet.

He said Mrs. Muse apparently did not hear the approaching train because of the noise from the heavy traffic. Bell said the train was going about 30 miles an hour.

Funeral plans will be announced by A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

Critic Lectures On Mellon Art At Agnes Scott

H. S. Ede Will Repeat Talk Tomorrow and Friday.

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY.

Agnes Scott's Presser hall last night was invaded by an army of young girls in gala evening attire who seated themselves among the red plush upholstery and, like Mohammed, had the mountain brought to them—the mountain, in this instance, being the culture of some five centuries past, as portrayed by the world's greatest painters.

The occasion was an illustrated lecture by H. S. Ede, distinguished British art critic, who brought to Atlanta with him 60 slides, which included his choice of the subject matter in the Mellon-Kress collection in the new National Art Gallery, Washington, D. C.

"Since you cannot travel the world today," said the speaker, "it is a fine thing for you to have in your nation's capital such a fine collection of art pieces from all over Europe," and emphasized the caliber of the gallery by calling attention to the many great masters represented.

Though the slides were greatly inhibited in effectiveness by the absence of color photography, the lecturer's explanations kept them from being entirely monotonous. His comparison of modern-day painters with the old masters and some few close-ups of the detail of the paintings, also served to make them more congenial company.

Mr. Ede, who was for 15 years curator at the British Museum of Art in London and comes as an ambassador of art to the south to tell us of our own National Gallery, will speak twice again this week at Agnes Scott, the two additional lectures, which are open to the public, will take place in the chapel tomorrow and Friday at 5 o'clock.

and Guadeloupe in the Caribbean.

American ships delivering war materials to the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf, officials declared, could easily pick up sugar at Reunion on their way home.

The Luchaire criticism of the Petain regime was matched in vehemence by another in the Paris newspaper La France Socialiste, written by Rene Chateau, who charged the church was among the forces working against Laval and collaboration.

Vichy, Chateau said, is suffering from "clericalism which has insinuated itself everywhere, everywhere dealing a blow to liberty of spirits, everywhere constraining them to weakness and poverty."

He charged further that capitalism likewise was "reigning unbridled" and warned of "an undercurrent of bitterness and rebellion which mounts in a tide."

The Paris Daily Aujourdhui devoted a front page editorial to the thesis that the United States had fallen out with Britain who had the upper hand for the moment.

Citing the nomination of General MacArthur as commander in the southwest Pacific and the "hardly disguised absorption of Canada by America, Aujourdhui added that President Roosevelt "not only charged his British partner with maladroitness; he treated him as a person of bad faith. If not, why the need for this engagement undertaken toward Hindus that London's promises will at this time, be kept?"

U. S.-Vichy Relations Are on the Mend

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—In line with the accord reached last month between Vichy and Washington, limited shipments of non-military supplies to French North Africa will be resumed, the State Department disclosed today.

Two French vessels now in New York loaded with cargo for North Africa will be permitted to leave simultaneously with the departure from North Africa of two ships loaded with materials for the United States.

The precise nature of the cargoes and the exact dates of the ship movements were not revealed, but the State Department emphasized that no military supplies of any character will go to North Africa. It was also emphasized that distribution of supplies arriving from the United States to the North African consumers will be under the direct supervision of American control officers.

Arrangements.

In other words, satisfactory arrangements have been made to insure that no United States supplies shipped to French North Africa for civilian uses will fall into Axis hands.

After the defeat of France in 1940, the United States agreed to permit limited shipments of civilian supplies, including food and motor fuel, to French North Africa. It was recognized that a collapse of North African economy, due to acute shortages of vital supplies formerly obtained from the United States, might cause unrest or even revolt among the native population and thus indirectly serve Axis ends.

However, when General Weygand last year was removed as French administrator in North Africa under circumstances indicating Axis pressure on the Vichy government, the United States abruptly discontinued these shipments and Secretary of State Hull announced that the United States felt compelled to consider its whole policy toward the Vichy government.

Former Tension.

Other difficulties increased the tension between Vichy and Washington, particularly reports that French supplies were reaching Axis forces in Libya. In subsequent diplomatic exchanges, however, most of these difficulties were ironed out and late last month it was authoritatively disclosed that an accord had been reached. At that time the question of a resumption of shipments to Africa still remained open.

Today's announcement, therefore, signifies that the accord reached in March is bearing fruit and that relations with Vichy—though still on a day-to-day basis—are definitely on the mend.

Lyle Declares Curfew Aimed At Film Shows

Mayor Says His Sole Object Was To Stop Late Screenings.

Mayor Lyle yesterday declared himself interested only in outlawing Saturday midnight motion picture shows and indicated he would ask Police Chief Hornsby to enforce the "curfew ordinance"—passed Monday by council closing all paid entertainment places at midnight—only against the midnight film shows.

City officials were debating yesterday how inclusive and far-reaching the ordinance really was, and Alderman L. O. Moseley and G. Dan Bridges announced they would ask repeal of the "curfew ordinance" at the next council session April 20.

Attorney's Ruling.

Mayor Lyle, who instigated the curfew to bar midnight motion picture shows, contended it applied only to such shows, but Moseley said City Attorney Jack C. Savage had ruled that it probably would apply to any kind of entertainment in which a cover or admission charge is made and that its effects would be sweeping, probably affecting all classes of entertainments in hotels, restaurants, clubs and probably some dances.

Mrs. W. C. Arnold, president of the Atlanta P.-T. A. council, said the organization several months ago adopted resolutions opposing the midnight performances; Dr. Louie D. Newton, chairman of the Atlanta Christian Council, said he had been studying the matter after it was brought to his attention by W. W. Woolfolk, executive director of the Atlanta Boys' Club.

Cites Adjustment Need.

Dr. Newton said that during his investigations he had talked to Dr. Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent; Chief Hornsby, Mrs. Arnold and other citizens, and they all agreed that the midnight shows presented a serious social problem that should be adjusted.

Moseley yesterday said the city has ample laws without passing a curfew measure and that the city could proceed against any entertainment which is immoral or which becomes a nuisance "without passing an ordinance which would close the entire city at midnight."

Atlantans Are Urged To Check Registration in Mayor Election

Voters desiring to vote in the mayor's election May 27, who are not certain they are registered should do so before April 27, as the city list closes 30 days in advance of the election date of May 27.

By city ordinance the old 1941 list used in the last mayor's race was adopted, provided, the clerk should purge the same by sending out postal cards, which will be done in a few days. Voters must sign and return a postcard verifying their registration and address, otherwise, after five days their names will be stricken from the list.

At the same time the city clerk was authorized to receive registrations at city hall, provided voters had paid their state poll tax, and also to pick and use additional registrations at both courthouses.

The state registration lists close May 2, which means qualificaton for voting for Governor, U. S. senator, statehouse and county officers, but the list for city election closes April 27.

Thus all persons desiring to vote in the mayor's race should register either at DeKalb or Fulton courthouse before April 27. In this way they not only register for the city race, but also will be qualified for the coming county and state races. Payment of $1 poll tax is all that is required.

In case of persons who have been voting previously or who are due back taxes, all poll taxes up to 1941 must be paid. In case of new voters or women who have not voted before, they can register this year and pay the $1 poll tax in December.

The Passing of Button Gwinnett

BUTTON GWINNETT was born in England in 1732 and came to America a few years before the Revolution. He purchased St. Catharine's Island, off the coast of Georgia, and there made his home. Serving as Georgia's chief executive, he was a member of the Continental Congress and a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Gwinnett's duel with Lachlan McIntosh, occurred on May 16, 1777. Both gentlemen were ardent Whigs and rivals for the office of the Commandant of the new battalion organized for service in the Continental Army. After McIntosh had bitterly denounced Gwinnett as a scoundrel, the latter challenged him, and at break of day, they met just outside the city of Savannah. They stood but twelve feet apart and both were wounded by the first shot. McIntosh recovered, but Gwinnett's wound proved fatal and he died a few days later.

Feeling ran high and Georgia was threatened with a division in her ranks, avoided only by the appointment of McIntosh to a command in the Northern Department in which he distinguished himself. He was much esteemed by General Washington, and at the close of the War, returned to Savannah, eventually becoming president of the Georgia Society of the Cincinnati. ¶ Since 1859 THE GEORGIA HOME, through its agents and brokers, has insured the homes and industries of Georgia, thus protecting the heritage of the South.

"Authority Cannot Be Divided"

In a decision that a sit-down strike by the crew of a ship is mutiny, even though the vessel is in port, the United States supreme court stated "authority cannot be divided." It was referring to the responsibilities of the captain of a ship. "Everyone and everything depend on him," said the court's majority opinion. "He must command and the crew must obey."

The same decision might well be applied to a nation at war under modern conditions of conflict.

It is axiomatic that in today's form of total war every man, woman and child is involved. War is made not only by the fighting forces but by the workers in the factories, the farmers in the fields, the students in the schools, the civilian population everywhere.

Under dictatorship there is no question as to the authority of command. The leader who has seized control gives the orders and the entire nation can but obey.

In democracies there is no such instant and unquestioning obedience. There are too many factions and parties and groups. Decisions must be arrived at by a process of debate. Thus the democracies, when it comes to the waging of war, are handicapped.

In wartime, however, there should be a temporary abandonment of democratic methods. Having chosen our national leader the exigencies of war demand we give that leader full authority, that we do not weaken him by criticism and argument, that we give to him, and through him to the nation, the added strength of our unquestioning obedience to orders.

The captain is responsible for the safety of the ship and all on it.

The commander is responsible for the outcome of the battle.

There can be no division of responsibility nor of authority there.

And we all, as members of the crew of the ship of state, must render obedience and faith to our chosen captain, our selected commander, during these critical days of war storms through which we pass.

To disobey, to strike, to weaken the nation's strength by creating dissension or doubt, is to mutiny. That is all. Whether we be workers, employers, contractors, farmers or private citizens, we are guility of national mutiny when we do not perform, gladly, all duties assigned to us.

Authority cannot be divided, whether it be on ship, in the Army or in the national leadership, when the fate of us all depends upon the outcome of the conflict.

The Post of Duty

There is one thing to be done in any time of emergency that is more important than any other. That is, to stay at the post of duty, to keep on doing your job, whatever it may be, despite danger, discomfort or fear.

It matters not what the job, nor how humble the operative, if that operative simply can't be driven off duty, he or she is due highest praise.

Last week there was a small grease fire in the kitchen of an Atlanta hotel. It was not dangerous, but it caused a lot of smoke that filled the building. And those who encountered that smoke had no way of judging, at that time, the danger of the situation.

The elevators in this hotel are operated by Negro girls. The smoke brought tears to their eyes but everyone of them kept right on the job, operating the elevators and bringing all passengers safely down from the upper floors.

Eight officials of the War Production Board from Washington were among the passengers brought down. They made up a purse and sent it to the hotel for the elevator operators. That was a thoughtful and commendable action.

If all Americans, when and if enemy bombers come to attack this country, only do their duty as well as these Negro girls did their's on the occasion mentioned, there need be no fear of panic among our population.

The Salute of Honor

Once again, soldiers of the United States Army and their officers are seen exchanging the salute on city streets. For a short time, this exchange of salute, off the precincts of Army posts, was abandoned.

Officers of other armed services were more or less flabbergasted by this innovation and they probably felt themselves justified when the regulation was changed to reinstate an exchange of salutes whether on or off an Army post. The first order probably resulted from a misguided solicitude of those in authority for the citizen soldier. The attitude which resulted in the suspension of the salute off the post was the same as that indicated in the descriptive matter under a picture recently printed which said that enlisted men now are "required" to salute officers when they meet them on the street.

This attitude brings up the question of the history of the salute. Its origin is shrouded in the mists of the history of ages long gone. We know that salutes have been exchanged by fighting men from time immemorial. In days when men wore no uniform, it signified friendship. In the code of the times it meant that no attack would follow the salute of the upraised arm. During the period when knighthood meant the burden of carrying arms, the salute as we know it today had its birth. Armor covered the body from head to toe. Since the left hand held the reins, these men of fighting breed used the right to raise the visor of their helmet, thus displaying their friendship to the similarly clad knight encountered.

In the Middle Ages, so-called gentlemen carried swords and wore capes. The upraised right hand guaranteed that no attack would follow a meeting on the street. The upraised right hand we know well—it is the salute of the Nazi, descendant of the rogue of the Middle Ages.

The salute of the knight in armor still is the salute of the men of the armed services of the United States. It is not "required" of enlisted men any more than it is required of officers. It is the greeting of honorable men of the fighting forces, unique in its form.

The salute and discipline go hand in hand. It is not peculiar to enlisted men. General Pershing once said "Send me men who can shoot and salute." For the man—be he officer or enlisted man—cannot shoot effectively if he does not realize the salute is not a mark of difference but of fraternity.

Perhaps some enlisted men and officers of the armed services will "gripe" about the salute. If they do, it may well be assumed they are ignorant of the honor inherent in the salute.

We who wear civilian clothes cannot, in all honor, give that salute. It is reserved for those who wear the khaki, the blue and the forest green. It is the greeting of fighting men.

The People's Anthem

Russia and China have demonstrated to the world that the way to beat the Axis enemy is for every individual to do his all to bring about victory. In short, total war demands the fighting of a people's war. Now that the United States is engaged in life and death struggle with the dark forces of Hitlerism and the Japanese, it behooves all of us to make this a people's war.

Thus it is heartening to see a step being taken along these lines—in a rather unexpected quarter. For a new version of "The Star-Spangled Banner" is being scrutinized by the nation's leading musical authorities. It's a streamlined version, aimed at giving every singer a chance on even the highest notes. It is written in the key of A flat and has been described as "taking the anthem away from the soprano and giving it back to the people."

Assuredly, that is where the grand old song belongs—with the people. And for the people. So far, little or no opposition has developed from the musical diehards, or those carping folks whose criticism of everything is more or less chronic. Let everybody sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," so that it really means something.

Georgia Editors Say:

THE FIRE-HAZARD AT WORK

(From The Walton News.)

Lamentable indeed it is that so many acres of woodland, much of it covered with the young, tender pines, have been marred by early spring fires. Recently we passed one of the most beautiful spots of woodland in all this country and it made our heart sink within us to see flames leaping up on tender plants—trees that are to provide for our needs in years ahead. If all this is traceable to carelessness, there should be exercised better judgment, greater care on the part of people, hunting, camping, or "just passing through."

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

SHABBY AND INEPT WASHINGTON, April 7.—Congress in dealing with the war profits limitation question has put forth about the shabbiest effort witnessed as the capitol in years. The performance of the past few days has been totally inept.

Profit limitation during wartimes is a subject on which nearly everyone agrees in principle. President Roosevelt set the thesis some time ago when he said no millionaires would be made out of this war. No one wants to see a lot of people get rich out of the war effort, paid for by the taxpayers' money. Only a few grafters and selfish self-seekers are trying to. Industry, on the whole, has responded nobly to the national emergency.

But because of the selfish few it is necessary to enact protective legislation on profit limitation, just as it is to maintain a police force to protect society against a minority of lawbreakers.

Both houses of congress have been considering bills on the subject. They are being considered in the orderly way. The best brains of the government and the country were summoned to give their views on the intricate and difficult problem. In addition, a new tax bill, the proper place for any profit limitation legislation, is now undergoing hearings before the House Ways and Means Committee.

In the midst of these several procedures, some unthinking member of the house offered an amendment to the sixth supplemental defense appropriation bill providing that no part of the funds should be paid in liquidation of a war contract involving a profit greater than 6 per cent. The amendment was offered at a time when only a handful of the house membership was on the floor. It passed without a dissenting vote. No one so much as questioned it.

JUST AS BAD A few days later the Senate Appropriations Committee struct out the impractical provision, but inserted in lieu one that was equally bad. The senate committee amendment called for a graduated scale of profit limitation, ranging from 10 per cent on contracts of $100,000 to 2 per cent on those in excess of $50,000,000. It did so in the face of opposition from Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, and a lot of other officials high and low in the government.

The whole business is extremely half-baked and poorly considered. Senator Walter F. George, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and certainly the leading authority on financial affairs in the chamber, will make an effort to defeat the proposal, not on the grounds of opposition to profit limitation legislation, but in the hope of having it considered through the regular channels and in the regular way.

He will point out to the senate that the result of the committee graduated scale will be to force contractors to break up their contracts into smaller parts as a means of taking advantage of the higher allowable profits. Instead of taking a contract for $50,000,000 worth of munitions, a manufacturer, he reminds, will simply ask for 50 contracts at a million each.

NOT TO BATTLESHIPS That will be well enough for producers of war goods which can be broken up into units of delivery, such as planes and guns and tanks. But it will hardly apply to the builder of battleships. These cost $50,000,000 to $80,000,000 each and require three and four years to build. A profit of 2 per cent on battleship contracts, spread over a period of several years, would be grossly unfair to the stockholders, just as a quick turnover contract at 8 or 10 per cent would be highly advantageous to manufacturers of shells.

Before rushing headlong into new profits legislation, Senator George thinks it would be wise for congress to consider the workings of the excess profits tax enacted at the last session. The returns of March 15 have hardly been in long enough for the Treasury to make a proper analysis of them. We haven't had a new enactment on the subject since Pearl Harbor, but we have hardly had time.

The trouble with congress is that it became panicky over the public reaction to disclosures of the House Naval Affairs Committee, under leadership of Representative Carl Vinson, showing some war contractors to be making exorbitant profits. The Jack & Heintz case brought demands from the country for a stoppage of practice of war beneficiaries paying heavy salaries and bonuses to officials and employes.

AMPLE LAWS ALREADY What the country didn't know is that there are ample laws on the statute books already to take care of cases of the kind. Before the Treasury Department gets through with Jack & Heintz, the company heads will wish they never had seen a bonus. They will be lucky to escape jail. The matter of indictments is now being considered.

But much of the ballyhoo about profit limitation now before the senate is purely political. Even if congress passes the proposed impractical graduated scale of ceilings, the matter will have to be revised and given more thorough consideration by the proper tax-making committee—house ways and means and senate finance.

That is why the house approved such a far-reaching proposal with no more fuss or feathers. They were satisfying a public demand for action, realizing that everything would be worked out in a more satisfactory manner later. It is a poor way to do business when such important problems are involved.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Did You See The Parade?

It does something to you. The sight of fighting men and fighting machines, the fighting men of Uncle Sam. The sight of the flag passing by, held high in pride by men ready to lay down their lives that it may still fly. A flag, surely, that all of us, uniformed or not, marchers or onlookers, will fight and sacrifice and, if need be, die for.

That Army Day parade through Atlanta's downtown streets on Monday will pay dividends. They will be the dividends of a stronger realization among all of us of the fact of war. That strengthened realization will bring grimmer determination, by every one of us, to do our part whatever it may be. A firmer resolve to give of our utmost, whether it be in work, in denial, in sacrifice, in money.

As I watched these men in uniform ride and march by, the thought came how pitiful it is for we of the civilian population, we who are not acceptable for the Army, that we cannot know the honor of wearing the uniform. For it is an honor. It designates that Uncle Sam has found this man worthy to bear arms for the greatest and grandest country on earth. Tell me that is not honor, if you dare.

They Will Probably Fight

And, as the boys of the R. O. T. C. of the various high schools passed by, the thought came again that these youngsters of today will, most of them, be in the real Army before this war is over. They are the boys who will know the victory. They are the ones who, grown a little older, a little bigger and a little stronger, will carry the war to the heart of Germany and Japan, will see the blood-red Nazi and the yellow Jap driven back and back until they fall to their shaking knees and cry aloud for the mercy they have granted to no others.

And the women. Women today are as important to the war as are the men. In many activities they do work that relieves manpower for the battle line. And, in the supreme service of all, they are the nurses who succor our wounded, who comfort our dying and who help back to health those who have been injured.

Did you notice, too, the junior division of the Women's Auxiliary service? The same applies to them as to the boys of the high school R. O. T. C. They are the generation which will win the final victory.

It taught us something of the scale of the national war effort to see all these trucks and tanks and battle wagons rolling down Peachtree street. Did you think, as each one passed with its men fully equipped, with rifles and helmets and all the other impedimenta, with the big guns pointing ahead, with the tractor treads rolling over the concrete, that every little item, every big one, represented the work of men and women in the factories, men and women workers who are fighters in Uncle Sam's nation-wide Army just as truly as the uniformed men who sat in these tanks?

To think of all that had gone into the making of every tank there, of every gun, of every cartridge, made you realize the immensity of modern war. And multiply what you saw by tens of thousands, you get some idea of the gigantic force Uncle Sam is spawning today.

One Unpleasing Thing

There was only one unsatisfactory situation about the whole parade.

That was, too many men failed to remove their hats when the flag passed by. Standing where I was I watched the civilians, wearing hats, across the street from me. I should say 75 per cent removed their hats every time the flag passed. But the remaining 25 per cent offered no gesture of honor to the flag that symbolizes their country, their faith and their hope.

This is bad. Let us hope it was, in most cases at least, only through ignorance any man failed to honor the Stars and Stripes. Still, I can't understand a degree of ignorance so dense they could fail to see, and to imitate, what men all around them were doing.

We are at war. Let's have meticulous observance of the homage due the flag at all future parades, please.

But it was a grand parade. It did something important to you, inside.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Suggestion Withdrawn TUCSON, Ariz., April 7.—A lawyer and law officer of these parts has been telling me that I did very wrong in asserting in a recent essay that Harold Ickes should have killed the editor of an occasional paper published in Bridgeport, Conn., who, in the course of some uncommonly dirty editorial repartee with Mr. Ickes, impugned the character of Mrs. Ickes. This lawyer and law officer says such counsel might encourage impetuous citizens to go around shooting other citizens on trivial provocation, so I wish to withdraw the suggestion, but will stand pat on my belief that if Mr. Ickes had done such, no jury in the United States—even though it were drawn exclusively from the roster of the publishers association — having heard the vicious libel, would have convicted Mr. Ickes.

A colonel of the regular establishment of the armed forces, who was sitting by during the discussion, knowing something of the personal character of the lawyer, must have indicated by something in his expression that he was troubled by some doubt, for the attorney then said that he was speaking as an officer sworn to uphold the law, leaving one to wonder what course he would take as an individual, were he ever placed in Mr. Ickes' position. He looked like the sort of man who would take very abrupt personal action were anyone to take any such liberty with the good name of his wife and when he had left the colonel puckered up one side of his face in a wink, and said he would not like to take any bets that anyone so offending would live to see another sun go down.

But there you are.

Seldom Punished The punishment for this kind of thing does not fit the crime and, furthermore, the punishment is seldom imposed, because public prosecutors ordinarily pay no attention to criminal libel unless they are goaded to it by the victim, who then has to go to court and spread the scandal further by repeating the libel under conditions which then permit and almost compel everyone else to print it. Moreover, the victim may be badgered and insulted by some low shyster for the defense and so thoroughly smeared with innuendoes that even though he wins he loses.

Of course, anyone with a shirt-tail full of type can be a publisher and the paper in the Ickes case was not fairly representative of the regular American press, but there is no sense in pretending that the regular press, itself, avoids this sort of thing. Almost any day you can read in our papers clear across the country items about married couples which say slyly that their friends are worrying or that they are acting very foolishly which are other ways of saying that the people in question are having a family jam which is nobody's business but their own and is libelous, what's more.

I don't know how any editor can reckon that he has any right to speculate indiscriminately on how other people's marriages are going, and if there is actual ground for such speculation that only makes the offense the worse, because then the parties concerned are publicly embarrassed and their chances of reconciliation are injured.

Often False If an editor has a reporter with a high percentage of error and rumor he finds some way to fire him and, meanwhile, combs and checks his stuff. But the same editor may buy a merchandise and print without checking, statements and insinuations seriously affecting the character and happiness of individuals in New York or Washington or Hollywood which may have a background of personal spite and often are absolutely false.

An actor, for instance, was accused in a great number of papers of attending a Nazi meeting in New York. This was a harmful lie, for the actor was on the stage several blocks away during this meeting. Another man was said to have separated from his wife when the truth was that she was dangerously ill and there was not the faintest ground for the report. Another was said to have gone into hiding after receiving threats, when a phone call to his home would have proved that he was not at all concerned. The instances of false statement harmful or at least humiliating to individuals who have a decent right not to be so abused by newspaper publishers are countless and the majority of them come from tawdy, raucous slum known as Broadway, whose journalism is notoriously unreliable and contaminated with base motives, including blackmail and malice.

The day has passed when it was necessary and customary for the editor to keep a colt revolver in an open drawer of his desk, but may return to those editors who do not realize that this immunity from fatal personal reprisal is accompanied by a personal and professional obligation to shun certain types of personal items and reject informants whose work, by fair test, has proved to be habitually inaccurate or dishonest, whether from motives of blackmail or personal revenue.

To pay for more of the kind of equipment you saw on Monday.

And, for all the future, let us never again fail to properly honor our own Army. Without it—but that's too bad to contemplate.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS Miss Dorothy Thompson spoke brilliantly Monday evening in Atlanta on the subject of the war and us.

At the end of the lecture there was an intermission, during which time unsigned questions were sent up. Obviously only a few could be answered. An effort was made to classify them, hurriedly and therefore inefficiently, into groups—those about India, those about Russia, and so on.

There cropped up the usual number of questions which show up in every such forum. They illustrate just why it is that public unity is difficult. They also illustrate just how many curious mental twists there are in every average audience.

Some of the questions, illustrative of that fact, were these, which I kept with me after serving as a sort of announcer of the questions:

"What is God?"

"Do Japan and Germany use esoteric magic to control the world?"

"Is it true Mexico is willing to furnish rubber to the United States and our government won't buy it?"

"Is it true there is plenty of sugar in Cuba but our government wants a shortage?"

"Please explain the Selective Service Act. Is it true this act was made so that politicians can exempt their proteges?"

"What has God to do with it?"

There were others which bordered on these questions. One cannot imagine where such fantastic thinking originates. Yet, if one analyzes, one finds reasons for some of it.

LYING PROPAGANDISTS The average person scoffs at propaganda, yet it always finds a few persons to believe it. The fake astrologists, who say the stars are against what this country is doing, sell many of their predictions. They are in the hire of enemy agents. The same enemy forces try to create distrust in the Selective Service Act and its administration. The act has been administered with fewer complaints than was believed possible. No one has been able to play favorites. The instances of illegal deferments have been almost negligible and all have been discovered and jail sentences imposed.

There is but a meager amount of rubber to be had from Mexico, and plants must be built to produce it.

There may not be a severe shortage of sugar. The government announced two weeks ago that a shuttle system was in action and that it might avoid, and certainly would alleviate, the sugar shortage. Certain sources of sugar, the Philippines notably, are gone. Tremendous amounts are being used to make alcohol, which is in turn used in manufacturing explosives.

Always remember this: the enemy constantly is trying to make you distrust your government and its conduct of the war. The efforts are clever. They appear to come from reliable sources. They want you to doubt your leaders, your Army, your selective service, your country's rationing boards.

They want you to doubt, to worry, to lose faith.

Our leaders are going to make mistakes. They are human. Yet we must remember they are doing their honest best.

Don't let the clever enemy, dressed in patriotic clothing, fool you with his letters, his pamphlets, his cards, his rumors.

Your country needs your faith.

GOD'S PLACE The two fantastic questions about God were produced by Miss Thompson's statement that this country, and all countries, must give God a place in the war and its planning and thinking.

She was saying that a people must believe in something; must have values of decency, integrity and honor.

Still others wanted to know how we could work with Russia, since Russia did not believe in God.

She replied that the church had grown corrupt before the revolution, but that already Russia was swinging the other way. The churches are open. The country which once, in its violent reaction following the revolution, wanted to destroy the family, which urged birth control, which promoted divorce by the filing of notice, now protects the family, no longer teaches birth control, makes divorce more difficult and marriage less easy.

She said, truthfully, that while the Russian government had been cruel, it had not been and was not now, corrupt as is the government of Germany and as were the governments of some other nations.

She said that our standard of living, as determined by the number of luxuries one had, was gone. She hoped for good.

She said there was nothing wrong with the profit system if that system worked for the benefit of its community. There was no justification for it, she said, if it existed for profit only. (I saw one of our town's leading bankers nodding his head in assent as I looked out at the audience.)

It was a good meeting. Naturally it produced questions. Most of them asked when the war would end. Next were those which asked questions on various phases of the war. The economic questions were few.

And—inevitably—the fantastic questions, indicating ominous mental twists and beliefs—were present.

It's a great world.

It Is His Natural Food if It Satisfies Him and Keeps Him Well and Strong

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Many people drift through life without purpose or plan or understanding because they do not realize that life itself has a plan.

What is the meaning and the law of life?

Find the plan that conforms to the plan of nature, and serves to develop man's highest capacities, and you have the answer.

Man is an animal. Like other animals, his first concern is to get food, to find a mate, and to protect himself from enemies.

Like other animals, he is free by nature and his rights and freedoms are absolute except as they are modified by the rights and freedoms of others.

But man is more than an animal. He has capacities that lift him above the others. He has an inborn moral sense that urges him to do what is right, and he has a spiritual ambition that forever urges him to improve himself and his world.

Other animals, having no law, are innocent of wrong-doing; but man, knowing good and evil, must forever make choice between the two.

The great majority of mankind, if given the opportunity, would live in peace, without offense to their neighbors, content to get their living by honest industry and enjoy the fruits of their own labor in security.

But the strongest of all motives is desire, and conscience alone seldom has the power to control man's appetites. Therefore the strong and cunning, being unrestrained, have throughout history preyed upon, exploited, used and robbed the simple and the weak.

This means that the evil or wrong in man has dominated most of the earth throughout the ages, and nations have been governed in ways that are contrary to the law of life and the plan of nature.

That plan of life, based on the fact that man's freedom and dignity are natural, is simple and easy to comprehend.

Out of his instincts and the necessities of his nature, man has evolved this creed and this plan: With the guidance of God to establish the brotherhood of man, through love and mercy and justice.

It is a creed and a plan of life that guarantees man's freedom and preserves his dignity and self-respect.

He knows it conforms to the plan of nature, for it satisfies him and develops his finest capacities, and any plan that opposes it offends him and debases him.

Parks in Summer; Fewer Cars—Miles More Visitors

Maybe the conservation of rubber—which means those precious tires—will force some of us back into the good old ways, which is a thought which has filled a thousand columns (not all mine) since restrictions were announced.

George Simons, general manager of Atlanta parks, is figuring on more benches—and perhaps less parking space. He thinks more people will spend leisure hours in his parks—and there are a lot of parks—this summer.

Often I've wondered who visited the parks—except the golfers at Piedmont and the monkey admirers at Grant and the tennis players at various spots.

Because I've been spoiled by advancing age—mine and my car's. I have frequently driven visitors through Piedmont, just from civic pride, but rarely have I visited it on my own account. Gee, I suppose I haven't sat on a park bench since I invested in a 1917 Maxwell—which I feel fairly sure is the one now used by Jack Benny and his faithful chauffeur, Rochester.

I realize I've missed something. A green park and a blue lake on a summer afternoon is something to enjoy. Especially if you are a lover of children, which I am not. I make haste to say I know I've missed something there, also. But if you've ever raised five—or stuck around while your wife raised them—you probably find small interest in the dear little devils other people are raising. On ice cream cones and lollipops and bubble gum and other viands which send a pair of pants to the cleaners after one friendly visit from a tiny tot.

Perhaps one reason I'm not attracted to the parks is because all suburban Atlanta in spring and summer is beautiful. And there is the open road. It is still open—and so will be that right rear tire if you don't watch out. Another reason is that my back yard demands a lot of personal attention—from a cushioned glider. In my back yard nobody urges me to purchase popcorn or peanut brittle. Nobody demands that I lift my feet while he rakes the grass for discarded cigaret packages and cigar stumps. And nobody slides into the seat next to me and inquires whether I feel that I am saved and if I'm not certain would I be interested in these little pamphlets concerning the House of the Lord's Anointed, or some other sure-fire road guide to the pearly gates. My back yard, I am happy to say, is wide open to friends and acquaintances and even strangers who have nothing to sell and no arguments to open, and I wish more of them dropped in. With or without dogs. Or children. If the children insist in falling into the fish pool their parents can drag them out. I completed a post-graduate course in that years ago.

But it is probable that a lot of us will visit the parks this year who haven't seen one since Aunt Maggie came to visit us with her twins—who insisted on seeing the zoo in Grant park.

Especially apartment dwellers whose cars have been retired for the year and who have no back yards. The street cars and buses are still running, and there are folk remaining who are sturdy enough to walk a few blocks and push a baby carriage.

Season of Suffering

Several acquaintances who observed me yesterday hobbling up Broad street paused to inquire whether I'd contracted arthritis or been run over by a truck. And where did I hurt most.

To forestall further questioning, in case I am able to go out and be questioned I will endeavor to explain. My condition is caused by: (1) over-enthusiasm over a spring day; (2) over-confidence in my general physical condition; and (3) too darn much bossing by the Mistress of the Manor. Sometimes I think all women should have been strangled at birth. In that case, of course, I should not be here—but I am straying far from my subject. They are here and there'll be more of them, and we might as well resign ourselves.

It was a lovely spring afternoon. The skies were blue, the sunshine warm. A poet would have been inspired to write. Which causes no serious trouble. But I was inspired to get out into the spring sunshine and work. Which is something different.

My special pet at home is the fish pool. Or lily pool. Which has contained neither fish or lilies for a number of years. It is merely a thing to look at—and clean out.

Our fishless pool had not been cleaned since the first cold days of last autumn. It had acquired a substrata of leaves and a thick coating of slime. And enough worms to supply a fisherman bait for a weekend excursion.

It is easy to drain, being halfway up a hill. To connect a hose and siphon out the water is a child's task. Which is perhaps why I undertook it, in a fine burst of mistaken enthusiasm.

It had been nearly drained, without expense of energy, when the Mistress of the Manor came out and asked about her fish. I inquired: "What fish?" and she spoke, weepingly, of some 817 specimens of surface minnows, technically known as gambosia, tiny fish which are supposed to eat mosquitoe larvae and keep neighbors from slapping and complaining.

From then on, friends, Romans and countrymen, I was condemned to hard labor. I cut off the siphon and dipped that fish pool dry with a stew kettle holding one pint. I strained the water through a sieve while she salvaged the minnows. Some of them small enough to pass through the eye of a needle. That was a labor of hours. With all my caution I think dear little goo-goo eyes and a large, fat and friendly one she called Gladys had gone through the hose and become one with the universe.

My idea of cleaning a fish pool is to siphon out most of the water, scoop out most of the accumulated mud and sand and leaves and fill her her up again, leaving the residue to settle to the bottom. But my wife is an antiseptic fiend. She demands that the last grain of sand be removed. I expected her to bring out a manicure set and a can of talcum powder to assure that the pool would be clean enough to give a royal baby a bath in.

So I had to wade in, rolling up my old pants and inserting my nether limbs into water slightly short of freezing. I had to lift pots of plants, from a sitting position. I had to do this and that. Just so. If all wives had been deported 40 years ago—but I've gone into that.

Anyway, as I started out to explain, I got a lot of exercise. My exercise since last September has been limited to shoving a dog out of my lap and climbing out of an easy chair when the phone rang. Wrong number, of course.

Acting on one of my favorite theories that the hair of the dog is good for the bite, the Mistress of the Manor assures me that a few afternoons of digging in the garden—she has a weird idea about tomatoes and perhaps cauliflower—will cure my sore muscles and take that crick out of my back and restore a few months of my lost youth.

But I want expert opinion on that. We're going to consult one of two authorities—my doctor or my lawyer.

PRAISES RALPH McGILL FOR "BLOOD ON CHAIRS"

Editor, Constitution: Permit me to give a word of praise where it is abundantly deserved. Take it as the opinion of the man in the street, which is at least as good as that of the statesmen of this day.

Your Ralph McGill achieved a wonderful thing and will no doubt have the eternal gratitude of the destitute and half-starving people whom he rescued when he wrote that vital paper entitled "Blood on the Chairs." He will also have the gratitude of thousands of others who love justice and hate injustice wherever it may be located.

The Constitution has really been getting to the gist of things lately in statesmanship and humanity and thus reaching the minds and hearts of the average American Georgian. Yes, you are now surely demonstrating the spirit of John Paul Jones, Benjamin Franklin, Davy Crocket and old Ben Millican. Keep up the good work and thus solidify those who love justice and hate injustice, and make us know there is something else eternally in this earth besides self-interest and "what am I going to get out of it."

"THE ARMOR OF FAITH" INSPIRATION TO ALL

Editor, Constitution: I am writing to express my appreciation of your editorial on "The Armor of Faith."

It is an inspiration to old and young to have our prominent men pay tribute to their faith in Christ and the resurrection.

It gives courage and hope to hose of us who are getting old, and makes better soldiers of those who go down into the battle.

Sparta Baptist church Opens Revival Services

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

SPARTA, Ga., April 7.—Special services were held at all Sparta churches Sunday, beginning with a sunrise service at the Methodist church at 7:45. Revival services opened at the Baptist church, with the morning sermon and will continue through the week with the Rev. W. H. Barrett, the pastor, doing the preaching. The Rev. W. E. Browne, of Lumpkin, will lead the singing, which will be a feature of the meeting.

Night and mid-week services at the Methodist church have been called in so that the members could unite with the Baptist in their meeting.

MEETING DATE CHANGE.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 7.—(AP) President A. K. Dearing, of the Savannah Chamber of Commerce, announced that the organization's annual dinner meeting would be moved forward from April 24 to April 15 because Senator Richard B. Russell, the principal speaker, telegraphed that he could not be present on the later date.

SHADES OF WORLD WAR I—Reminiscent of the last war is the striped camouflaging of the British aircraft carrier Eagle. In various tones, the special wartime paint job forms an odd and deceptive pattern on the bow of the vessel. Earlier in this war ships were painted a dull gray. Now the old striping has reappeared.

Opera Season At Cleveland Draws Throng

Stars of Metropolitan Win Praise for Performances.

CLEVELAND, April 7.—(AP)—Wagner's "Lohengrin" was the Metropolitan Opera Company's performance tonight in Cleveland's "Little Season," with Lauritz Melchior, Astrid Karnay, Kerstin Thorburg and Norman Cordon in the leading roles.

A near capacity audience in public hall heard last night's "Don Giovanni," and sponsors predicted attendance at the remaining six performances in the next four days would be approximately 68,000 for the week.

Warmly Received.

The "Don Giovanni," with John Brownlee in the name rale, was warmly received, and Music Critic Herbert Elwell, of the Plain Dealer, in commending "a great work superbly presented," gave much of the credit to Rose Bampton, Bidu Sayao and Richard Crooks. He also characterized the work of Conductor Bruno Walter as "an admirably faithful interpretation."

Tomorrow night Lily Djanel, Raoul Jobin, Thelma Votipka and Licia Albanese will appear in "Carmen," with Sir Thomas Beecham conducting. Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" will be given Thursday night, with Lotte Lehman, Emmanuel List, Eleanor Steber and Thelma Votipka in the cast.

"Traviata" Friday.

Friday's matinee is Mozart's "The Magic Flute," with Condon, Brownlee, Charles Kullman and Alexander Kipnis, and in the evening Helen Jepson, Votipka, Jan Peerce, John Charles Thomas and Lucielle Browning will appear in "La Traviata."

Puccini's "Tosca" will be given Saturday afternoon, the stars being Grace Moore, Alexander Sved, Kullman and Cordon. The final performance Saturday night will be Verdi's "Aida," in which Giovanni Martinelli, Lansing Hatfield, Stella Roman, Votipka and Thomas have leading parts.

The sponsor, Northern Ohio Opera Association, announced a week ago that guarantors, as in the past 11 seasons, would be exempt from calls for making up deficits.

Good Pastures Are Classed As Cash Crop

Athens Agronomist Lists Suitable Grasses for State.

ATHENS, Ga., April 7.—(AP)—Permanent pasturage should be considered a cash crop, says Extension Service Agronomist E. D. Alexander, because it furnishes feed for the production of livestock and livestock products which may be exchanged for cash or supplies.

"It is a supply crop in the truest sense of the word, as it furnishes high-quality feed at a low cost, he pointed out. "If properly managed the permanent pasture can be made one of the most valuable areas on the farm, and no farm is complete without an area established to plants for grazing."

In a summary of pastures, Alexander said:

The well-drained lowlands of the state make the best permanent pastures, but good pastures can be made on the upland areas if they are fertile or made so by soil improvement and adding plant food.

The most common and important pasture plants for Georgia are Bermuda grass, Dallis grass, carpet grass, lespedeza and white and hop clover. Bermuda grass and lespedeza and, in north Georgia, hop clover made the best upland pastures. Blue grass, herds grass, orchard grass, lespedeza and white clover are best for the mountain section.

Pasture systems should be worked so as to have grazing if possible throughout the year. This can best be accomplished by a combination of lowland and upland and the use of warm and cool season plants. Temporary pastures should be used to fill in for and give protection to the permanent pasture.

Proper pasture fertilization is profitable.

To get the most from the permanent pasture, it should be kept free of excess water, should be protected from erosion, grazed reasonably close, kept free of weeds, and guarded from tamping.

Louis Newelt Dead at 83 In California

Was Founder of Southern Spring Bed Company.

Newelt, a brother of Mrs. Otto Schwab, of 1050 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., retired from the presidency of the bed company in 1924, and with his wife, traveled extensively through Europe before establishing a home in Los Angeles.

Coming to the south from his home in Connecticut in the early part of 1880, Newelt organized the bed company, and with his brother-in-law, Otto Schwab, built the company up to where it did a nation-wide business.

Although he had retired as active head of the company, Newelt retained a financial interest in the company, and visited here about two or three times a year.

3 1-Act Plays On Mercer Program

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MACON, Ga., April 7.—Characters for three one-act plays, to be presented at Mercer University during the spring quarter, were selected today by the college's chapter of Alpha Psi Omega dramatic fraternity.

Miss Shirley Bakewell, of Macon, and John P. Heard, of Forsyth, will carry the leading roles in "Ile," a work of Eugene O'Neill, which Hillis Hollingsworth, of Cave Spring, will direct.

"Twelve Pound Lock," by Sir James Barrie, is to be the second production. The cast, under Blake Jones, of Macon, includes Miss Martha Betty Wilson, of Greensboro; Miss Iris Warren, of Sandersville, and Albert J. Henderson, of Canton. Miss Sara Boone, of Jackson, has Miss Nancy Highsmith and William Krenson, of Macon, listed for prominent parts in a rendition of Thomas Wolfe's "The Return of Buck Gavin."

Rites Held at Brunswick ForBomberCrash Victim

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., April 7.—Funeral services for Robert H. Trammell Jr., 25, staff sergeant and radio operator, who was killed in a crash of an army bomber last Friday in Rhode Island, were held in Brunswick Tuesday afternoon at the Norwich Street Baptist church, with interment in Palmetto cemetery. Mr. Trammell was one of five officers and men killed in the plane crash. The bomber was from Westover Field, Chicopee, Mass., where Sergeant Trammell has been in service for several months.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Trammell; one sister, Mrs. Lee Gaskins, of Brunswick, and one brother, Staff Sergeant Tommy Trammell, of the United States Marine Corps, Pensacola.

Boards Ready For Signing of 45-65 Group

'Special Care' Urged in Instructions Sent to Draft Officials.

Those men who were over age for previous selective service registrations, but think they're still not too old to shoulder a gun probably will consider it unnecessary, but special care was urged yesterday in preparing for their registration April 27.

Distribution of instructions to local boards concerning the forthcoming registration of men, aged 45 to 65, was reported by state selective service headquarters.

An announcement declared that "because of the difficulties which may be experienced with elderly registrants," registration places must be carefully located throughout each area and sufficient registrars must be provided to avoid transportation difficulties or delays.

Hours of registration will be between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m., April 27, but state directors have been authorized to register men during the two preceding days or any additional advance days deemed desirable.

Although the men to be registered then are not liable for military service they will be registered in much the same manner as men already enrolled and while no national lottery will be necessary for them, serial numbers will be placed on their cards by local boards.

To give employment and to get employment A Want Ad in The Constitution is equally effective in both cases.

Summer Term Set At Tifton College

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

TIFTON, Ga., April 7.—Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College will join other American colleges in speeding up the education program during the war by holding a regular summer quarter, according to President George H. King. The summer session will begin June 8 and close August 17. High school graduates may enter the freshman class in June. Applications are now being received.

A new feature at the college during the coming summer session will be the operation of the new food processing and freezing plant which will help make the college largely self-sufficient in foodstuffs. Students are now planting Food-for-Freedom gardens, finishing off livestock, and raising poultry and poultry products that will be processed during the summer quarter.

PROPERTY VALUE GAIN.

ELBERTON, Ga., April 7.—The report of the city tax assessors shows property valuation in Elberton to have increased $72,000 over 1941. The city has lowered the 1942 tax rate five mills.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

DR. TRUETT.

Continuing the discussion in yesterday's column about the engagement of Dr. George W. Truett at Druid Hills Baptist church, Sunday, April 12, through Sunday, April 19, during which period he will preach each morning at the church at 11 o'clock, and each evening at Atlanta's downtown Municipal auditorium at 8 o'clock, let me tell you briefly about the groups that will sponsor the evening meetings.

Sunday evening, April 12, will be educational night. The faculties and student bodies of the public schools of Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties, the Georgia School of Technology, Emory University, Agnes Scott College, Oglethorpe University, Georgia Military Academy, the University Evening College, Washington Seminary, North Avenue Presbyterian school, the business colleges, the training schools of all the hospitals, the orphanages, together with representatives of all the colleges of the state will sponsor the service. The presidents will occupy seats on the platform.

Monday evening will be transportation and communication night, sponsored by such groups as the Georgia Power Company, the Southern Bell Telephone Company, the telegraph companies, the railway, airline, bus and truck, and taxicab lines, the radio stations, etc.

Tuesday evening will be civic night, sponsored by the state, county and municipal groups, the chambers of commerce, the civic clubs, the newspapers, the police and firemen, and other related organizations.

Wednesday evening will be defense night, sponsored by the various military and civilian defense units, federal, state and local, together with the Boy and Girl Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls, the FBI, the American Legion, etc.

Thursday evening will be capital and labor night, sponsored by all of the groups in the retail and wholesale business life of the community, together with all the labor groups.

Friday evening will be young people's night, sponsored by all the organizations of young people in the churches of Greater Atlanta. And Sunday evening, April 19, will be everybody's night.

I take this last paragraph to tell you about the meeting at the Municipal auditorium on Sunday afternoon, April 19, when all the people of Atlanta will join with Friendship Baptist church—Atlanta's oldest Negro Baptist church—in celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the pastorate of Dr. Edward Randolph Carter. Dr. Truett will preach the anniversary sermon, and Dr. Carter will speak, following the sermon. I expect this meeting to be one of the grandest occasions in the history of Atlanta. Dr. Carter richly deserves the community-wide tribute which the white and colored races alike will gladly pay him that afternoon. He has been pastor of historic Friendship church since the third Sunday in April, 1882. Don't miss that meeting, and don't miss any of these great evening meetings. Please pray for every meeting. Thanks.

Peach Growers To Meet in Macon

MACON, Ga., April 7.—(AP)—A statewide "victory" session of Georgia peach growers will be held here April 21 under auspices of the Georgia Association of Peach Growers, it was announced today.

A luncheon program at 1 p. m. will be highlighted by an address by William Garfitt, executive vice president of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. A general discussion of plans for the 1942 season will follow.

Collier's To Carry Vereen Bell Story

Vereen Bell, of Thomasville, author of "Swamp Water" and frequent contributor to national magazines, "made" Collier's this week with an outdoor story called "The Sounds of Geese." The issue will be on the stands Friday.

Within a short time Bell has become known as one of the outstanding writers of stories about wildlife in the south.

Columbus 'Blackout' Disappoints Officials

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 7.—(AP) Officials were not so pleased by the result of the city's second test blackout, which climaxed the city's Army Day celebration last night.

The blackout, which lasted for an hour, came a few hours after thousands had watched an armored division parade in downtown Columbus in the morning, and then had visited near-by Fort Benning in the afternoon to watch training activities and inspect equipment and weapons during an open house.

Wood Is Installed As Optimist Head

John Woods last night was installed as president of the Optimist Club, succeeding Sid Reams, at a ladies' night dinner at Davison's.

Other officers installed were Charles W. Shaw, treasurer, and four vice presidents, Beaumont Davison, Steve Outlaw, Travis Johnson and T. M. McClellan.

Plans for the annual charity show, "Desert Song," to be presented in May, with Miss Helen Poss as leading lady, were discussed.

Entertainment was furnished by the Yaarab Shrine Chanters, led by Warren Bearden. Negro spirituals and sacred songs were sung. Oscar Coe gave several humorous readings.

M. E. Coleman, a past president, was in charge of the installation of new officers and presented Reams with a past-president's jewel pin.

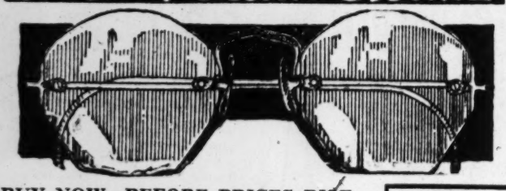

Body of Mrs. Mills Is Sent to New York

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 7.—(AP) The body of Mrs. Katherine W. Mills, 58, sister of the late Associated Press Foreign Correspondent James A. Mills, was sent to New York today for burial. She died Sunday night.

Mrs. Mills, a native of Ireland, was the wife of Christopher Mills. Besides her husband she is survived by a daughter, Miss Margaret A. Mills, of Savannah; two brothers, Thomas Mills and John Mills, and a sister, Mrs. Nellis Fitzgerald, all of New York city.

E. Schaefer, of Toccoa, Observes 90th Birthday

E. Schaefer, of Toccoa, celebrated his 90th birthday recently at his home, "Sunnyfield," in Stephens county.

He is the oldest living member of the Capital City Club of Atlanta, in which he still holds membership. He was honor guest at a birthday dinner given by his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Marks.

Woman Falls to Death From N. Y. Apartment

700,000 Tons Of RubberSeen Yearly by 1944

War To Determine If Any Will Be Given Civilians.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Synthetic rubber production will attain a rate of 700,000 tons annually by the end of 1943, Secretary of Commerce Jones estimated today, but he added that only the unpredictable demands of war would determine whether this output would mean rubber for civilian tires.

Testifying before the Senate Defense Investigating Committee, Jones estimated that production would hit a 100,000-ton yearly rate by the end of 1942, with a probable total output of from 25,000 to 40,000 tons during this year.

At the same time Jones denied that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had overruled recommendations of the Defense Commission to President Roosevelt in 1940 for a 100,000-ton annual production program, contending that the program had been "adopted in principle" at the time and had been since carried out.

Testimony that Jones had thought the 100,000-ton recommendations of the Defense Commission unjustified was given to the committee previously by William L. Batt, now materials chief for the War Production Board.

"We have persistently worked at the problem of acquiring and producing rubber," the commerce secretary declared.

"There has been no delay; on the contrary, the program has been pushed."

Kiwanians Hear LeTourneau Talk

Kiwanis Club of Atlanta, at its luncheon yesterday at the Ansley hotel, heard an address by R. G. LeTourneau, president of the LeTourneau Company of Georgia.

He spoke on "Horsepower, Manpower and God," describing his company's plant at Toccoa, which is turning out dirt-moving machinery and implements of warfare. The club entertained about 75 nonmember guests drawn to hear his address.

Bowling trophies were awarded to a dozen leaders in the Kiwanis tournament.

College Group To Study Civilian Morale Service

Representatives of 10 colleges in northwestern Georgia will meet today at Emory University for a planning session on civilian morale service. Emory is one of four institutions acting as key centers for information. The others are University of Georgia, G. S. C. W. in Milledgeville, and Atlanta University.

Representatives are expected from Agnes Scott, Berry Schools, Emory-at-Oxford, Georgia Evening College, Georgia Tech, LaGrange Woman's College, Reinhardt, Shorter and West Georgia College.

Tugwell Offers Plan For Supplying Islands

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, April 7.—(AP)—Governor Rexford G. Tugwell said today he believed a system of West Indies highways with ferries bridging the water gaps between islands in the Caribbean would be the answer to the submarine's threat to the area's food supply.

Just back from a trip to Trinidad, British Guiana, and many of the islands, he said ferries could be quickly built and could cover the water gaps in daytime with a minimum of patrol protection.

The food stocks of some of the islands were described as "very low."

Tyrone Power Applies For Enlistment in Navy

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—Tyrone Power, film actor, applied today for enlistment in the United States Naval Reserve.

Navy officials said Power, if accepted, probably would be rated as a chief petty officer in the Office of the Morale and Recreation Division. He probably will be placed on inactive duty for several months until he completes a picture now under contract in Hollywood.

The 28-year-old actor said he "liked the Navy better than the Army."

He said he had discussed enlisting with his wife, Annabella, French actress, and she had told him it was up to him to do whatever he felt he should do.

F.D.R. Jr. Leaves Naval Hospital in Brooklyn

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—Lieutenant (JG) Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., was listed as an "out patient" today at the United States Naval hospital, Brooklyn, while convalescing from a bronchial infection.

Navy public relations officers said Roosevelt was still on the sick list and would report to the hospital regularly for treatment and observation. However, as an out patient, he will be able to live at home until his convalescence is completed.

He entered the hospital March 25 a few weeks after he had recovered from an appendicitis operation.

Captured Italian Ammunition Explodes

CAIRO, April 7.—(AP)—Thirty persons, including eight British soldiers, were killed Sunday by an explosion of captured Italian ammunition on a lighter wharf near the Suez canal, it was disclosed today. The ammunition was being unloaded from a captured Italian supply ship.

War Workers To Be Allowed Some Recaps

Tires To Be Issued When Necessary To Reach Jobs.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—War workers will be able to get recapped automobile tires under April rationing quotas "only when they cannot get to their jobs without them," Price Administrator Leon Henderson declared today.

In making a limited number of recaps available this month to "list B," or secondary, eligibles under the rationing program, "OPA was concerned only with the necessity of keeping war production lines and other essential operations from faltering," Henderson said.

"The national interest, and not the convenience of the war worker was the governing factor. . . . It may well be that in locations where alternate means of travel are available, the local boards will issue only a very few passenger car retreads or recaps to war workers."

Henderson called on war workers to be just as thrifty as anyone else in taking care of their present tires and cautioned that replacements at the April quota level could not be counted on to continue although demand for tires will increase steadily.

"This means that many workers who now drive their own cars to work and for pleasure will have to turn to some other transportation when their present tires give out," he observed.

Norway's Clergy Resigns in Body

STOCKHOLM, April 7.—(AP)—All clergymen in Norway have handed in their resignations to the ministry for church and education in Premier Vidkun Quisling's government, the Oslo correspondent of the newspaper Tidningen said today. A long message was read on Easter Sunday in every Norwegian church giving reasons for the mass resignations, the story added. The clergy recently has been in conflict with the Nazi-controlled Quisling regime over youth control and other matters.

William Green's Son Enlists in Air Corps

DAYTON, Ohio, April 7.—(AP)—Harry E. Green, 29, son of President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, has enlisted in the Army Air Corps and has been commissioned a second lieutenant. He is stationed temporarily at Wright Field here. Green was an attorney affiliated with the Cleveland firm of Squires, Sanders and Dempsey.

Musical Comedy Is Roxy Feature

Universal's gay comedy musicale, "What's Cookin'," featuring the singing Andrews Sisters, Leo Carrillo, Woody Herman and his band, and Jane Frazee, comes to the screen of the Roxy theater starting today.

Putting the accent on rhythm, the new musicale features an even dozen new hit tunes. The 18 Jivin' Jacks and Jills, famous jitterbug team, has a conspicuous place on the program.

The story is concerned with the efforts of a radio advertising salesman, who tries to convince his clients they should sponsor an air show discovered by a group of music-conscious entertainers.

'Twas a Cat-astrophe, And Pet Caused It All

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 7.—(AP) A cat brushed against a hot stove today in William Murray's home. Its fur ignited, the frightened pet leaped into a pile of newspapers, starting a fire.

Stocks

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—While airlines and other specialties gave a fairly good account of themselves in today's stock market, many leaders failed to extend Monday's recovery bulge.

Buying reluctance for most pivotals was in evidence at the opening and, in relatively slow dealings, irregular tendencies persisted to the close.

Handicapping bullish forces was the Bataan battle crisis and fears of a breakdown in British-India negotiations. Cloudy prospects anent legislation on profits limitations, prices, wages and labor inspired some cashing in on the post-Easter upturn.

In the curb modest improvement was retained by Aluminum of America, Humble Oil, Creole Petroleum and Pantepec. On meager sales Singer Manufacturing was up 4 1-2, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie 2 3-4 and United Light & Power "A" 2 3-8.

The bond market engaged in a series of small fluctuations both up and down resulting in little change in the basic price level.

VETERAN AIRMAN GIVEN PROMOTION

Major William L. Plummer, of Atlanta, a veteran pilot who earned his wings in the first World War, yesterday was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Air Corps of the Army of the United States, according to an announcement from the War Department.

A pioneer in the field of aviation in the south, Lieutenant Colonel Plummer was pursuit ship flying instructor at Carlstrom Field at New Arcadia, Fla., in 1917-18.

He continued active in aviation after the war ended, and was instrumental in establishing the Air Corps unit at Candler Field 10 years ago.

In 1940, shortly before he went on active duty, he was elected president of the Air Reserve Association, national organization of reserve pilots.

Joining the flying service when the present huge Army air command was merely the aviation section of the Signal Corps, Lieutenant Colonel Plummer remained a leading figure in civilian aviation circles after the war. In 1933 and 1934 he served as chairman of the aviation committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

NAVY RESERVE AIR PASE ENTERTAINED MUSICALLY

Officers and cadets at the Navy Reserve Air Base were entertained for an hour and 40 minutes Monday night by Graham Jackson with a one-man musical show which featured music ranging from boogie-woogie to classical selections. Jackson kept playing as long as officers would let men remain out of quarters.

Soup in Cans To Be Reduced To 21 Varieties

Nutritive Value Must Be Improved With More Solids.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The American housewife won't be able to work as much magic with her can opener after June 30, for on that date only 21 kinds of condensed soup will be marketed in tin cans.

Announcing this decree today, the War Production Board declared the 21 kinds must contain certain percentages of solids to improve their nutritive value. Canners will be allowed to equal their 1941 production of the 21 varieties.

Types of tinned soups permitted and per cent of solids required in each after June 30 were:

Chicken, chicken gumbo, chicken noodle, gumbo Creole, consomme and bouillon—6 per cent; tomato, asparagus, spinach and fresh green pea—7 per cent; clam or fish chowder—8 per cent; Scotch broth, vegetable, vegetable vegetarian, pepper pot, oxtail, mock turtle, country style chicken and corn chowder—10 per cent; beef and vegetable beef—12 per cent.

Canners who packaged these soups in "ready to serve" form last year must reduce their consumption of tin plate for such purposes 30 per cent after June 30.

Packaging of soups, broths and chowders other than those named may not exceed 25 per cent of the 1940 pack between now and June 30 and use of tin plate for packaging such products must be stopped after that date.

Classes Are Resumed At Gordon College

BARNESVILLE, Ga., April 7.—Classes were resumed this week at Gordon Military College after the "free weekend" for the cadets. Government inspection, conducted last Wednesday and Thursday by four army colonels, was concluded Thursday at noon, and all cadets allowed a long weekend leave. The inspection was highly pleasing to inspecting officers, who expressed the belief that the cadets showed much promise as soldiers.

Move Is Made On Water Aid For Bell Plant

City Officials Confident FWA Outlay Will Be Available.

Federal Works Agency aid in providing a $1,100,000 waterworks development to furnish 54,000,000 gallons of water a month to the Bell Bomber plant was sought yesterday by city administration leaders, and Mayor Lyle and W. Zode Smith, general manager of waterworks, expressed confidence federal co-operation will be available.

During the morning, conferences were held with Irving C. Brower, assistant regional representative, and J. B. Freeman, regional finance examiner for the agency, and Consulting Engineers Joe Eley and Herman Wiedman, of the city staff, were in further conferences with agency officials during the afternoon.

Smith said no definite proposals have yet been decided upon, but that progress was made. He added Atlanta will fulfill its agreement to provide water for the huge plant even if the city should be forced to make large outlays to keep its commitments.

Under the program a large filter plant will be built across the Chattahoochee river in Cobb county, and the water will be pumped to the bomber site through 24-inch mains.

Pope Erwin Dies; Former Atlantan

Pope Barrow Erwin, former Atlantan and a native of Clarkesville, Ga., died Monday in Bridgeport, Conn., where he was located with the Inheritance Tax Division of the United States government.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the First Presbyterian church in Clarkesville.

Erwin practiced law in Clarkesville before moving to Atlanta many years ago. He left here about 20 years ago. He was the son of William S., and Ruth Clarke Erwin, and his father was a legislator and solicitor general from Habersham county. He was a first cousin of Alexander Erwin Wilson, of Atlanta. Surviving are his wife and a daughter, Ruth.

Peanut Storage Plant Being Built in Schley

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ELLAVILLE, Ga., April 7.—Schley county citizens are beginning the construction of an $8,000 to $10,000 peanut storage plant in which to store their anticipated 3,000-ton peanut crop and the crops of near-by counties this fall. This plant is to be modern as to housing, loading and reloading facilities. A sheller will probably be established some time in the late fall or spring to accommodate the growers and facilitate handling of peanuts.

Miss Skinner, Noted Actress, To Appear Here

Wednesday Recital To Be Held in Glenn Memorial Hall.

Character sketches by Cornelia Otis Skinner, one of America's foremost actresses, will be next Wednesday night's feature at Glenn Memorial hall under the auspices of the Student Lecture Association of Emory University.

Miss Skinner is described by Cecil Smith, critic of the Chicago Tribune, as "one of the loveliest and most patrician actresses of our stage."

Her appearance here next week will be the third time Miss Skinner has performed under the auspices of the Student Lecture Association.

Tickets for her recital are now on sale at Rich's and Davison's, and also may be purchased Wednesday night at Glenn Memorial hall.

Injuries Fatal To Pedestrian Struck by Car

Hurts Received March 18 Prove Fatal; 11th Traffic Victim.

Alexander Calloway, 62, a Negro, of 385 Harden street, died yesterday at Grady hospital of injuries received March 18 when struck at the corner of Grant and Biggers streets by an automobile driven by Arthur Dixon, 43, of 366 Ormond street, S. E.

11 THIS YEAR. 11 Same Time Last Year.

Police reported that Calloway was treated at Grady for head lacerations following the accident, but the injuries were not considered critical. The report said complications developed, causing his death.

Dixon was charged with reckless driving-accident and the case set for trial April 14.

Atlantan's Traffic Clock Acclaimed

National recognition for young Tony Roselle, 10, whose traffic clock at Broad and Marietta street is being observed by traffic authorities throughout the nation, came yesterday when the American magazine devoted two pages to the traffic device and pictures of Tony.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Roselle, 1520 North Highland avenue, N. E., conceived the idea for the traffic time clock and worked with city engineers to perfect the device, which was used at the corner of Marietta and Broad streets for several months.

Politics Gets Hot on Campus At University

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., April 7.—Student elections at the University of Georgia will be held Thursday in Woodruff hall, with H. B. Edwards, son of the senator from Valdosta, and Tom Penland, from Blairsville, as candidates for campus leader. Pete Wheeler, of Crawford, and Beryl Sellers, of Fort Gaines, are the candidates for vice campus leader. Harry Kunjansky, of Atlanta, and Kenny Mock, of Colquitt, are contestants for the position of president of the athletic association.

Students will vote by classes, with separate boxes for each class. Holding the polls will be Al Fowler, of Douglasville; Albert Williams, of Plains; Mort Peeples, of Chatsworth; Harold Carter, of Cordele; Curtis Avery, of West Point; and Harley Bowers, of Moreland. The vote will be a secret ballot system installed last year.

The platforms taken by the candidates have been acclaimed both by mild form addresses and fiery speeches. Promises range from the ancient argument of lowering the book prices at the Co-op to the opening of Athens shows on Sundays.

In the race for president of the senior class are three contestants: Luke Lassiter, of Covington; Bob Harrison, of Crawfordville; and Eugene Hudson, of Raleigh. For secretary and treasurer of the senior class; Robert Bryan, of Snellville, and John Vickers, or Norman Park.

In the sophomore class: Harnel Hyatt, of Hamilton, and Kenneth Tucker, of Ocilla, are the contestants for president; and Elmo Hester of Cuthbert, unopposed, for vice president.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

The President wants a name for this ferocious fracas. He thinks that calling it a war is equivalent to calling it a one-mule rodeo.

And calling it the second World War falls as far south of the mark as a short-legged dog barking at the full moon.

Mr. Roosevelt is right about this contest. Whatever it is he guarantees, it is the first of its kind.

I don't want to go into any prize contest. If you name it they are liable to give it to you.

All I know this is the first war in which man or walrus is not safe on an iceberg or man and monkey safe in a palm tree.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

U. S. Not Worried About Sugar

By GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 7.—Although sugar rationing when it goes into effect next month will alter the eating habits of many families, the average American housewife is not greatly worried.

She confesses that she could get along on a lot less sugar than at present; in fact, she believes, on the average, that her family can do nicely on 9 1-2 ounces (.6 lb.) per week per person.

The Sugar Rationing Administration is undecided whether to make it one-half pound (8 ounces) or three-quarters of a pound (12 ounces). The surest method of discovering the minimum amount the nation thinks it needs is to go out and talk to housewives from coast to coast. That is what the American Institute of Public Opinion did.

Questions Asked.

It asked first:

"About how many pounds of sugar a week does your family use?"

Translating the results onto a per capita basis, the average amount named is approximately one pound per person per week.

Housewives were next asked:

"What is the smallest amount of sugar your family could get along on each week?"

On a per capita basis the average amount needed, the housewives calculate, is 9 1-2 ounces (.6 lb.) per person weekly.

The nationwide sugar rationing registration involving all men, women and children has been set for May 4, 5, 6 and 7, when rationing books will be issued.

All Groups Agree.

The Institute survey reveals the interesting fact that although housewives in the upper and middle income brackets now use slightly more sugar per individual than housewives in the low income bracket, nevertheless both groups say they could get along on the same average amount — 9 1-2 ounces a person weekly.

Rural housewives, the study shows, use more sugar at present —1.1 pounds per person weekly on the average—than city housewives who use approximately .9 pound. Both groups, however, say they can get along on .6 pound, or 9½ ounces.

Improved Cotton Staple Wins Trophy For Orchard Hills

By AL SHARP.
Constitution Staff Writer.

ORCHARD HILL, Ga., April 7.—The Orchard Hill One-Variety Cotton Improvement Association today was awarded the trophy presented by the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia for the best staple record on the 1941 crop.

The trophy was presented by J. T. Hightower, vice president of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association, to Phillip Weldon, president o fthe Orchard Hill organization, and A. G. Swint, the community's secretary and treasurer.

Approximately 200 agriculture officials and farmers gathered for the program, which included a tasty barbecue. Other farmers remained at home to take advantage of the pretty weather to plow the land for cotton crops—a patriotic gesture in the light of present conditions.

Community Praised.

Hightower, who is vice president of the Thomaston Cotton Mills, was high in his praise of the Orchard Hill community for its progress in the development of the one-variety program.

Speakers included John Harlow, Spalding county agent; T. M. Forbes, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association; E. C. Westbrook, extension agronomist; R. P. Bledsoe, experiment station agronomist; Joe H. McClure, senior marketing agent; Walter S. Brown, director of extension service, and C. A. McLendon, regional director for one-variety program for U. S. Bureau of Plant Industry.

They traced in their speeches the growth of the one-variety program, pointing out its success and the help to farmers, manufacturers and all those concerned with cotton in Georgia.

Income Increased.

McLendon said the program, which lengthened the staple from 13-16ths of an inch to more than an inch, had meant $15,000 more a year in the pockets of the community's farmers during the past 10 years. He pointed to the $150,000 as actual remuneration for the program which had brought a better market.

Brown emphasized the program's part in the war effort and said that other communities in the state as well as other states had followed the lead. He said that there are now 30,000 members of similar associations which control 1,500,000 acres.

McLure used a chart to illustrate the difference in the staple of the Orchard Hill cotton, showing how the percentage has increased until only a small part of the crop here is not longer than an inch.

The program was organized 11 years ago and Stoneville seed was introduced through 19 farmers. Two years later all 126 farmers in the community were using the seed and since that time the community has been on a 100 per cent basis.

Swint, ginner, farmer and merchant here, was praised for his leadership in the program. He was elected secretary and treasurer of the association when it was organized and he has served in that capacity ever since.

The setup at Orchard Hill has been studied by many farmers and in 1937 the community was host to 4,000 farmers and others interested in cotton improvement.

Meat for the barbecue, which was prepared by the church women's organization, was provided by J. H. Cheatham and J. Mac Cheatham.

Members of the Orchard Hill Association's executive committee also were introduced. They are W. D. Cauthen, Paul Bevil, Willis Biles, E. P. Colwell, O. M. Duke, W. C. Maddox, James M. Sims, A. G. Swint, Ezra Taylor and G. H. Coppedge.

Officers' Training Quota Announced

Only 27 candidates for officers' training will be taken during April from the 700 applications of 3-A registrants throughout Georgia, it was announced yesterday by State Selective Service headquarters here.

Brigadier General Sion B. Hawkins said the quota was 27 for April and 26 for May, and that the 700 applicants probably would be made eligible for acceptance by some method similar to the national draft lottery.

The candidates come under the recent ruling which allows 3-A registrants to apply for training. The work of elimination in Georgia's 188 draft boards will be started as soon as possible, General Hawkins said.

6-Point Plan Is Announced By U. S., Mexico

Program Is Designed To Aid This Country's War Effort.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The United States and Mexico tonight announced a six-point program designed to aid this country's war effort and develop the vast resources of the neighboring republic.

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles and Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, Mexican foreign minister, in a joint statement climaxing a week of conferences, outlined plans for:

1. Development of Mexican industry including construction of a steel and tin plate rolling mill with Export-Import Bank credits.
2. Increasing the capacity of Mexican railways through addition of needed rolling stock — United States and Mexican experts already are surveying the country's rail system.
3. Studying the feasibility of constructing small cargo vessels with materiel and tools provided by the United States.
4. Construction of a high octane gasoline refinery in Mexico with United States equipment.
5. Streamlining procedure for handling priorities and allocations for Mexico based on Mexico's needs in relation to the war production effort of the United States.
6. Early conclusion of a reciprocal trade agreement between the two countries.

The program was announced on the eve of the departure of Dr. Padilla for New York after a series of conversations with Welles and other high government officials.

Huey Long Part In Noe Concern Bared at Trial

Late Senator Assumed Guiding Role, Say Witnesses.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—(AP) Witnesses in the trial of former Governor James A. Noe told today how the late Senator Huey P. Long had assumed a guiding role in mineral contracts which became the first assets of the Win or Lose Corporation, but concealed his ownership of 31 per cent of the stock even from the corporation's secretary.

A Texas oil man and his lawyer described negotiations leading up to a contract with Noe, who had obtained a lease on state-owned waterbottoms in Ouachita, Morehouse and Union parishes.

They related that Long refused to allow Noe to sign the contract until it was modified so that Noe could withhold drilling rights on 20 locations "as a club" to assure performance on 30 other wells.

Dinner Planned For Cattle Show

Members of Georgia 4-H clubs and of the Future Farmers of America, who exhibit at the Atlanta Fat Cattle Show April 14 and 15, will be guests of Atlanta businessmen at a dinner at the Biltmore hotel following the first day's show.

A menu consisting entirely of Georgia products will be served.

J. M. Harrison, chairman of the dinner committee of the Chamber of Commerce has arranged for the boys and girls exhibiting in the show to attend a movie following the dinner.

Vacuum Firm Barred in Use Of Aluminum

Hoover Company Under Penalty for Three Months.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The Hoover Company of North Canton, Ohio, the country's third largest producer of vacuum cleaners, today was prohibited by the War Production Board from fabricating or dealing in aluminum for a three-month period as a penalty for alleged priority violations.

At the end of a 10-day grace period, the company must cease all manufacturing operations calling for the use of aluminum, WPB said. The board charged that the company improperly diverted about half a million pounds of secondary aluminum "from the requirements of the war program."

In approximately the period July-October, 1941, the Hoover firm shipped 140,382 pounds of aluminum under unauthorized toll agreement, WPB said, and in addition accepted delivery of 179,274 pounds of scrap aluminum although no preference rating had been assigned to these deliveries.

173 DEPORTED.

BOGOTA, Colombia, April 7.—(AP)—The government sent 170 male German nationals and three Italians to Buenaventura today where they will board a boat for the United States. There they will await exchange for Americans held in Axis countries.

Society To Turn Out Tonight For Grand Colonial Jubilee

• • • "TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT" for the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School! Attired in their best bib and tucker, members will turn out in force for the Grand Colonial Jubilee, to be held at Rich's, the gala event combining a modern style show with the magnificent creations in silver lame created by Russell Patterson for the Silver Pageant which climaxes the program.

Further accenting the silver note, 24 table arrangements—12 for dinner on the fifth floor, and 12 set for luncheon on the fourth floor—will vie for honors. Twenty-four garden clubs are participating in this arrangement that holds high interest. Newly decorated, the fourth and fifth floors provide a perfect setting for the tables, which are divided into six "pattern" classes.

The sixth floor will be transformed for the evening and the Magnolia Room will become a theater with ample stage and long runway for the presentation of the fashion pageant. Some of the loveliest members of the circle will model the most attractive creations from leading American designers.

Marcus Bartlett and a string ensemble will furnish music for the pageant, and the Chariot Wheel chorus will help to create atmosphere with plantation songs of the colonial period.

Guests will begin to assemble at 8:30 o'clock, when the doors on Broad street nearest the Alabama corner open. A group of Young Matrons will be on hand as ushers under the direction of Mrs. James N. Frazer. Assisting her will be Mesdames Mary Malone White, Holcomb Green, Richard Cannon, Harllee Branch Jr., Frank Inman Jr. and Norman Ramsey.

At the soda fountain on the first floor, Mrs. Roy Booker and her committee will be prepared to quench thirst with soft drinks.

Frank H. Neely will be master of ceremonies in the Magnolia Room, presenting notables here for the occasion. William Warren will be commentator for the Silver Pageant.

Among those judging the table arrangements will be Augusta Owen Patterson, of Town & Country; Katherine Blake, of Vogue; Frances T. Heard, of House Beautiful, and Elinor Hillyer, of House and Garden.

Don't forget to call Mrs. Wilmer Dutton today and tell her how many guests from the Naval Air Base you would like for dinner next Sunday. Her telephone number is Hemlock 1467.

• • • WHEN Evelyn Harrison marries Pat Dinkins on April 18, she will be the 37th bride to wear in her slipper a four-leaf clover given by Mrs. Howard Harmon. For additional good luck she will wear in her other slipper a sixpence given her by Mrs. Bolling Jones Jr.

The exquisite rosepoint lace coronet Evelyn will wear to hold her tulle veil in place will be loaned her by Mrs. Glenn Ryman, who wore it at her wedding. The dainty lace handkerchief which Evelyn will carry was a gift from her aunt, Mrs. Julian C. Thomason.

Evelyn and Pat will plight their troth at a ceremony at noon at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church, after which Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harrison will entertain at a breakfast at the Piedmont Driving Club.

• • • WHEN the Cum Laude Society at Taft School in Watertown, Conn., compliments its new members at a dinner on Thursday evening, Hugh Quin, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Langdon C. Quin, will be "among those present."

The members of the honor society, you see, are selected from the seniors having the highest scholastic average. This year, from a graduating class of 104, Hugh was one of the 10 seniors chosen to receive the distinguished honor. The handsome young Atlantan will be graduated from Taft in June and next fall he will be enrolled at V. M. I. in Lexington, Va.

• • • ATLANTANS will be interested to learn of the promotion recently accorded Rufus G. Thayer, now with the Navy at Pearl Harbor, who has been made a full commander! Commander Thayer, you recall, is the husband of the former Anna Harriett Shewmake, of this city, and he has been on duty in Hawaii for some time. His wife and two sons returned to the States soon after war was declared and are now in San Francisco.

According to information received here by Anna Harriett's father, Claude Shewmake, and her sister, Mrs. T. M. McClesky, the promotion came as a result of the heroic work by Commander Thayer on December 7 and the week following. Commander Thayer (at that time a lieutenant commander) was in charge of the salvage work after the Jap attack at Pearl Harbor and it was his duty to put "damaged goods" back in action. The speed with which the work was done and his power of organization were cited as distinguished service when he received his promotion.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace are here for the Grand Colonial Jubilee to be given tonight under sponsorship of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School at Rich's. Wallace is head of a silver company bearing his name, and will present the Grand Colonial pattern during the pageant.

Miss Margaretta Black and her guests, Misses Ann Folsom, of Boston, Mass., and Phoebe Olmstead, of Bristol, Conn., have returned to Bradford Junior College, in Bradford, Mass., after spending the holidays with Miss Black's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Black, on Oakdale road.

Jesse Couch is spending the Easter vacation with his mother, Mrs. G. J. Johnson, on Roswell road. He is a student at Princeton University in New Jersey.

Mrs. Elbert Dwinell, of Montpelier, Vt., is spending several weeks with Miss Emma Scott at her home at Washington Seminary. Mrs. Dwinell, as Mrs. Lias Palmer, made many friends here as study hall teacher at the seminary.

Mrs. Edward H. Janes is convalescing from a broken leg at the Georgian Terrace. Mrs. Janes was injured last October on Peachtree street.

Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, of Tallulah Falls, is at the Henry Grady hotel. She will attend the Georgia Federation convention being held here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonneau Ansley are in Savannah visiting the latter's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Benedict. During their absence, Miss Beulah Jackson, of Nelson, Ga., is visiting Miss Martha Jackson at the Ansley home on Andrews drive.

Mrs. Lee Shackelford, of Wilmington, Del., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard See at their home in Ansley Park.

Mrs. Fred E. Jett and little daughter, Bonnie Sue, of Tampa, Fla., are the guests of relatives in the city and at Jackson. Mrs. Jett is the former Miss Rebecca Preston, of Atlanta and Jackson.

Mrs. T. T. Crews Jr. Honored at Party

A number of interesting post-nuptial parties are being given in compliment to Mrs. Theodore Talmadge Crews Jr., who before her recent marriage was Miss Joy Clough, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Clough.

Mrs. Crews was central figure yesterday at the dessert-bridge party given by Mrs. Walter Reynolds Jr. at her home on Glenwood drive.

Daily Exercise Prolongs Your Youth

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you do not take the time to exercise, time will certainly overtake you. You can count on that! A small amount of exercise every day, is absolutely necessary to keep that middle-aged spread . . . and the middle-aged feeling that goes with it . . . firmly in check.

Of course, you can't believe what a set of calisthenics will do for you until you give it a try. And, very likely, the more you hate to take it up the more you need to and the greater the improvement you will see.

To get results and also to make exercise as painless as possible, turn it into a habit. Put it into about the same category as brushing your teeth. Make it just one of those things you do.

If you are a businesswoman, take your setting-up exercise in the early morning to 'wake yourself up. But if you are a housewife, you may find it easier to fit your 10 to 15 minutes' workout into the mid-morning or the mid-afternoon. The time of day doesn't really matter so long as you choose a time you can stick to, day after day. The only thing to be said for exercise early in the morning is that you get it over with before too many other activities interfere.

You should exercise with some regard for what you have been doing. In taking your early bird calisthenics, bear in mind that you have been lying down for a number of hours. So don't leap out of bed and start bending over and dashing around. Take your lozen or so exercises in a prone position. This will give you a good sendoff for the day. Moreover, this position is the best for taking exercises to strengthen the midsection muscles, the kind you are most apt to need. Here is a good beginning set:

Position: Lie on your back on the floor with knees flexed and feet on floor close to hips.

Movement: Dig the small of the back into the floor, hold and relax. Repeat five times and rest. Then, from the same position, dig small of back down into the floor and progress in the exercise by slowly raising hips off floor until you are in a straight line from chest to knees. Do not arc the small of the back in elevating hips. Hold, lower to floor and repeat five times.

Position: Sit on floor with one leg straight out in front, other knee flexed and clasped to chest.

Movement: Keep that position and rock backward, one knee still hugged to chest, the other stretched straight up in air at a right angle with trunk. If you can make it, hold everything and come back up to a sitting position. This exercise tones the muscles of the entire midsection.

Send for "Business Girl's Daily Half Dozen" or for the "Waistline and Beltlines" leaflet. Please enclose stamped return envelope with your request to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Georgia.

Columbia Meets Actor Shortage With More All-Girl Pictures

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.—(INS) With all the young heroes in Hollywood joining up, Columbia isn't going to take chances of a shortage of actors. There's a femme movement afoot on this lot. That is, two movies are scheduled—"Petticoat Army" and "Something About a Soldier"—that will feature a bevy of pretty girls headed by Marguerite Chapman. "Petticoat Army" will have an entirely feminine cast and "Something About a Soldier" has only one or two men in a yarn about a handful of soldiers who are put on guard at a girls' school near an aviation field.

Featured in these Bob Sparks production will be the lineup of pretty youngsters Columbia has under contract. I must say they do all right by their young charmers in a publicity way. Every magazine I have picked up lately is plastered with pictures of Janet Blair, and of course Rita Hayworth's publicity campaign by Columbia is press agent history. Oh, yes; Lou Breslow is scripting "Petticoat Army."

When all is said and done, what really counts is the tinkle of gold at the box office, and "Shanghai Gesture," with Vic Mature and Gene Tierney really tinkled. So, this April morning, I can't say I am surprised to learn Vic and the little Tierney will be teamed in "China Girl," (which, you remember, is Darryl Zanuck's own original story) to be made at 20th.

But to get back to "Shanghai Gesture," there is really an amazing box office story back of this picture directed by Josef Von Sternberg. The critics panned the tar out of it, but in spite of that, reports from all over the country have been amazing. It broke records in New Orleans, where Vic (the hunk o' man) Mature is very popular.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Everybody is glad but Buddy De Sylva (Bob Hope's boss) that Bob goes to Azusa today to become honorary mayor. Buddy is mad as a hornet because he was born and reared in Azusa and he doesn't see how come Bob rates this honor. But Bob is big-hearted, and has invited his boss to go with him when the official mayor does the honors. The reason Azusa is so partial to Bob is because on his broadcast he has made the thriving little town famous by mentioning it again and again.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD, COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Jean Gabin helping Alan Dietrich select a spring chapeau—proof of any man's devotion; Alan Ladd's wife has remarried, according to one of our reporters; Edgar Bergen and Elinor Davenport, brunet beauty, center of attraction at Bill Jordan's bar of music; Grace McDonlad, Ray's sister, is flying to Georgia to see her fiance, Bob Shackelton; Milton Berle frankly worried over the condition of his mother, who is reported very ill; Claire Trevor and Leo Fields, Baltimore theater owner, applauding the Slapsie Maxie show; Gene Autry's brother, Dudley, is in the Marines and so Gene and Smiley Burnette put on a show for him at San Diego last weekend; Diana Barrymore is the envy of everyone on the Universal lot. When she finished "Eagle Squadron," her director, Arthur Lubin, presented her with two new tires; Lady Furness and Eddie Lowe, Hollywood's most constant twosome, dining at the House of Murphy; Ann Sheridan returned from her tour of the camps so exhausted she has been ordered to rest a few days before she starts work; Anita Loos with George Cukor and the Rene Clairs a the opening of "Life With Father." Many of Dorothy Gish's old friends were there to give her a hand. That's all today. See you tomorrow! But Leota Holt, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., says: Buy defense bonds. Save your papers, pennies and tin. We're out to win!"

MY DAY: An American's Reason For Joining R. A. F.

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday—I reached New York city yesterday afternoon in time to visit a friend, and to have a young friend of mine, who is about to join the RAF, come in to say good-bye. For his training, he is going to the west coast, where his family live.

He taught me a very good lesson. Unthinkingly, when I heard that he had been turned down by our own air force, I remarked that I wished he had tried for another branch of our own service, rather than join up with the English boys. His answer was: "But, Mrs. Roosevelt, this is our war, so I shall be in our service."

That is, of course, perfectly true and shows how unthinking one can be, even when one knows that our boys are fighting side by side with the Chinese, Dutch and English boys and those from all the United Nations.

After my broadcast and a quiet dinner, I had another rather late appointment. I reached the Pennsylvania station to find it, as usual, crowded with soldiers, sailors and marines. This crowd was considerably augmented by a number of civilians, who were also traveling. I was, therefore, not surprised to find that there was some confusion about my reservation, and was perfectly delighted when they discovered that the confusion did not mean I would have to sleep in an upper berth, though I was quite prepared to do so.

Washington is already experiencing wartime difficulties. There are fewer taxicabs and many people were waiting for them this morning. They stood guard over their bags with no vehicle in sight. I discovered two gentlemen, whom I knew, and took them in car with me. I also offered to pick up two soldiers, who seemed to be waiting an unconscionable time, but they were going in the opposite direction, so I was of no help.

At 11 o'clock this morning I had a press conference, followed by a talk with two gentlemen. Then a variety of people came to lunch. Every age was gathered around the table, from one of my nieces, aged ten, to myself. At 3:30, my niece, Amy Roosevelt's, high school class, from Birmingham, Mich., came in for a brief reception. At 4 o'clock, Diana Hopkins and some of her friends and a few younger children came in for an Easter egg hunt and some movies, followed by an early supper.

The red-letter part of my day was when Mr. and Mrs. Donald Culross Peattie came to tea, which we had for the first time this spring on the south porch!

Lovely Glynis Johns, newcomer who makes her first screen appearance in Atlanta in "The Invaders," typifies daintiness and freshness. To make this freshness a reality, there is a delightfully perfumed product which is described in the accompanying article.

Insure Spring Daintiness With New Liquid Deodorant

By Winifred Ware.

Daintiness is just as much a part of your daily beauty routine as cleansing your face, and with the advent of warm weather these last few days, I am sure you have all begun to think more in terms of an anti-perspirant than just a deodorant.

In these days when, more than ever, we must take care of the things we have, it is very important to take the best possible care of our clothes. It is a long-established fact that perspiration will rot fabrics, and so I want to tell you today about a delightful product which is both deodorant and anti-perspirant.

It is a liquid, attractively packaged, and easy to use. It is nonsmarting and very effective in stopping perspiration, and in case some extra exertion causes a little moisture under the arms, this product's properties as a deodorant will give you complete peace of mind.

The liquid is delightfully perfumed, with a fragrance which clings all day long, and discovery of the product for yourself, I am sure, will be one of the high spots in your summer.

This product of absolutely harmless to fabrics, and may be used daily, if you like, or less often if you find you don't need it more regularly.

It comes in a dollar size which probably will last you all summer, but come autumn, I predict you will repurchase it and continue using it all year round.

For the name of this product and stores where it may be purchased, call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565. If you live out of town, write to me, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I shall be glad to give you this information.

Some Points On Everyday Etiquette

No girl thinks she's won personal success unless she's asked on glamour dates . . . smart restaurants, music, trim uniforms! But when some ARE asked they find they're forgotten to learn modern etiquette for such dates! They don't know how to order, even when to leave.

The girl who is a success knows such things. She's poised, charming. On consulting the menu, she waits for her beau to ask what she'd like and lets him give the order to the waiter.

And, when the meal's over she suggests leaving, for she knows that's the girl's place.

Such smooth manners can soon become second nature. Check yours! Do you call a waitress with "Miss" or address a woman as "Lady?" Polite society says "don't." Or do you ask your military friends to carry bundles; do you make boners in introducing officers, enlisted men?

Send 15c (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for our booklet, "THE NEW BOOK OF EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE," to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Some Common Errors in Medical Terms

By Dr. William Brady.

Once an error becomes established with the public it becomes extremely difficult to correct. Instances are the conventional practice of saying "the fracture was reduced by Dr. So-and-so" whether it was "set" immediately after the accident or not. Reducing—that is, bringing the fragments of broken bone into as nearly perfect position as possible—requires days in many cases. Another instance is the misapplication of the term "aphasia." For many years that term was applied to loss of memory. Most people now know amnesia is the proper word for it. "Aphasia" means loss of speech or the power of articulation. Another common error is the confusion of the terms antiseptic and aseptic.

Antiseptic means the use of chemicals which prevent or lessen the multiplication of germs. Antiseptics do not destroy disease germs as a rule—except certain germicides (germ killers) which would be too destructive to body tissues to use medicinally or surgically.

The antiseptic era in surgery began when Lord Lister, English surgeon, introduced the use of a constant spray of solution of carbolic acid in the air of the operating room, as well as the use of such antiseptic solutions for instruments, dressings and the wound and the surgeon's and his assistants' hands in the latter part of the nineteenth century. The practice of keeping the atmosphere sprayed with carbolic acid proved so dangerous to every one in the operating room that it was soon abandoned. But the use of carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate and other poisonous chemicals in solutions for skin, wound implements and dressings became routine and was the practice in "antiseptic" surgery for many years. On this practice was based the idea that a good dash of some such "strong" antiseptic is adequate treatment for wounds in general—this notion has been entertained by too many physicians who should know better. Rarely does a layman comprehend the distinction between antiseptic and aseptic—the layman suspects it is just a bit of medical lingo calculated to confuse the uninitiated. At least that's the way it seems to me when a layman describes how he or she has used "antiseptic" precautions.

The aseptic era began when physicians and surgeons acquired more knowledge of bacteriology and realized that it is infinitely better to exclude germs from the wound or from the environment or dressings or instruments or hands or clothing or the air than it is to try to kill or check development of germs already present. I say the aseptic era began with that realization. It was 10 or 20 years in developing into anything resembling a practical working plan or method. The aseptic technique now universally used was acquired by a long process of scientifically checked tests of various procedures, sort of a trial and error system. In its present form it can be learned, not in a month, but only by years of training.

Acid Ash, Alkalin Ash.

Please give lists of foods that leave acid ash and foods that leave alkaline ash. (J. F.)

Answer—Send 25 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Feeders' Digest," which gives such lists. I would not recommend choosing foods on that basis.

Wife Should Try Separation Before Deciding on Divorce

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I am a young woman 20 years old and have been married for two miserable years to a man 20. We have no children. I do not know what to do, or whether I should do anything. My husband thinks as long as he buys food and keeps the rent paid he is an ideal husband. He absolutely will not buy me any clothes. He just does not believe in it. I am not one to spend money foolishly, if I had it, or to buy unnecessary things, but I have only one decent dress and a coat I had before I married.

He expects me to do all the laundry with my own hands, as I do not have a wash board, and then he tells me my hands look ugly and red. When I am sick I cannot go to bed, but have to keep on until I drop. He curses and swears and says I am crazy and am trying to get out of work.

These little things cut and hurt me, and I have just worried myself sick. I am 20 pounds under weight. If he feels like this toward me now, what do you think it will be when I get older? I have been told that I am attractive, and have had a business course and am sure I could get a job. I do not love him any more, nor do I love any man and am not satisfied with my life. I do not want to give him the best years of my life, and have him act toward me as he has during the past two years. We have both admitted that we made a mistake in our marriage, but neither of us have done anything about it. My parents do not believe in couples separating or divorcing and I know that if I left him, I could not go back home. Is there anything wrong in renting an apartment and living alone? They think that would be a disgrace. SANDRA J. S.

Your husband is like so many men who think a woman should get down on her knees and thank her stars that she has a husband to give her food and a roof over her head. I grant you that that is an important part of marriage but certainly is not the whole part. I think from your letter that your husband is selfish and stubborn and the longer you live with him the more you will have to suffer and be denied the nice things of life. Because you have accepted his treatment for two years, he thinks that you will continue to do so for the rest of your life. You are young now and you say you are miserable, so just think of the unhappiness ahead for you. You had better make a break now or spend the rest of your life unhappy and miserable. My advice to you is to get yourself a job but do not give one penny to your husband for the upkeep of the house nor food.

It is a very unfortunate situation to have to work to get your own clothes but under the circumstances it is the only way out. Since you do not love him, I think a separation for a while might be a very good idea. Certainly you are not getting anything out of this marriage but unhappiness. It is possible that a separation would bring him to his senses and the two of you can find love and happiness together again. Your family seems to be rather narrow-minded about the separation and divorce angle, for sometimes it is the only alternative. I think it would be all right to get yourself an apartment. You are a married woman, and there would be no reason for criticism from any one.

Your Horoscope For Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chiropodist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Between 9 a. m. and 10:26 p. m. favors dealings with those in executive positions, public affairs, ideas of beautification and for advancing your position, providing you do not take sudden risks.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—If you have someone special to contact and want your interview to proceed smoothly, make your engagement before 11:08 a. m. Between 11:08 a. m. and 12:06 p. m. favors work requiring mental activity.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—This should be a very favorable day for ideas that start and finish now. Optimism or over-exuberance for the future should be curbed, and if these traits are held in reserve, the day favors domestic, financial affairs, sociability and mechanical interests.

June 21st and July 22d (CANCER)—Before 11:23 a. m. does not favor speculative ideas. Between 11:23 a. m. and 3:52 p. m. favors interests pertaining to land. After 3:52 p. m. favors sticking to routine matters.

July 23d and August 22d (LEO)—From 9:06 a. m. through 3:46 p. m. care and economy should be practiced. This especially applies to assuming new financial obligations. From 3:46 p. m. throughout the remainder of the afternoon and evening favors attending to routine matters.

August 23d and September 22d (VIRGO)—After 8:56 a. m. favors agreements, contracts, changes, correspondence. After 7 p. m. be especially careful concerning accidents.

September 23d and October 22d (LIBRA)—The day favors matters of an artistic nature and those whose purpose it is to beautify and adorn. The day is especially favorable for matters of a domestic and social nature.

October 23d and November 21st (SCORPIO)—After 9:17 a. m. is an excellent time for making definite decisions and finishing up matters that have already been started. The evening hours past 7:30 p. m. favor social activities and romantic affairs.

November 22d and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The most important time of the day for taking important action along all lines appears to be after 12:35 p. m. An excellent period for constructive work in matters of finance, personal advancement, constructive planning for future prospects and interviewing or consulting people in important positions.

December 22d and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The entire day and until 7:53 p. m. favors mechanical and industrial works, finances, educational and legal affairs, but suggests cautions in works around liquids, chemicals and drugs.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The entire day previous to 1:43 p. m. favors buying and selling, trading, contracts and communications. After 1:54 p. m. pleasures, domestic affairs and travel.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Before 1:15 p. m. favors general business dealings. After 1:15 p. m. especially favors dealings with older people, contracts, communications and legal affairs. After 5 p. m. use care in partnerships and cooperative matters.

Rarely, if ever, do you hear, "Yes, she's getting along," applied to women who retain enthusiasm and spirit enough to keep beautifully groomed.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "We couldn't get along without Ann's help. She keeps the newspapers folded and in their place and feeds the dog and does so many things."

Mother: "I don't ask Ann to do anything around the house. She's only little once and responsibilities come fast enough without children being given them."

Georgia Juniors Meet Tomorrow At Woman's Club

Reports on victory work will be given by the junior clubs of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, at the luncheon session at 12 o'clock on Thursday at the Atlanta Woman's Club, with Miss St. John Barnwell, junior extension secretary, presiding. At the opening meeting of the state convention tomorrow, Miss Barnwell will present the report of the juniors' progress.

To the junior club having the largest attendance, Miss Barnwell will give a bouquet of defense stamps. The club reporting the greatest activity in USO work will be given a bluebird vase holding red and white flowers, and a vase of flowers will be presented to the club reporting the best local civic project. A campaign to raise money for a defense bond to be given by the juniors to Tallulah Falls school will be launched.

A lasting verbal account of names and clubs of those attending will be made on a recording machine at this initial meeting of juniors in conjunction with the state convention. A badge will be given each president or her representative.

The presentation of the patriotic song, "Because We Are Americans," composed by Mrs. Emily Robinson Head, who will be a guest, will be made.

New clubs welcomed include: Tallulah Falls Junior Club, of Smyrna; Stagette Club, of LaFayette, and Smyrna Junior Woman's Club. All junior clubs considering joining the federation are welcomed. State officers, district presidents, junior club sponsors and chairmen and any federation member interested in junior work are invited. A greeting committee will be formed by Mrs. Walter Lee, of Fort Valley; Mrs. Hiram Whitehead, of Comer, and Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, during whose state presidency in 1932-34 junior clubs were established in Georgia Federation.

Must Your Daughter Risk Happy Marriage on Half-Truths?

Many a mother, reared in days of false modesty, dreads to "tell her daughter." Little wonder so many young wives unknowingly risk happiness by using overstrong solutions of acids for the douche which can actually burn, scar and even desensitize delicate tissue.

Today such doubts and unhappiness, such risks are needless. Science has given womankind Zonite. So powerful, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors. Protects personal daintiness. Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles bought. Officers of the Junior League elected yesterday to serve with Mrs. Erroll Hay Jr., the new president, were, left to right, Mrs. James Campbell, second vice president; Mrs. William Wellborn, treasurer; Mrs. Ivan Allen Jr., recording secretary, and Mrs. Howard Candler Jr., first vice president.

Mrs. Erroll Hay Jr. Elected President of Junior League

Mrs. Erroll Hay Jr. was elected president of the Atlanta Junior League at the meeting held yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club, succeeding Mrs. Edwin McCarty, capable league president for the past year. Elected to serve with Mrs. Hay were Mrs. Howard Candler Jr., first vice president; Mrs. James Campbell, second vice president; Mrs. William Wellborn, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Hurt, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Ivan Allen Jr., recording secretary.

Members elected to the League's board of directors included Mrs. V. W. McKinney Jr., Mrs. William Nixon, Mrs. H. W. Beers Jr., Mrs. Albert Lewis Jr. and Miss Jane MacMillan.

Mrs. Hay, the new president, and Mrs. James Campbell will attend the conference of the Association of Junior Leagues of America which will be held in Kansas City, Mo., April 28 through May 1.

Mrs. Hay is especially fitted for the leadership of the Junior League, having been the capable treasurer for the past two years. As an outstanding member of the League, she has efficiently served as chairman of Egleston hospital, the hospitality committee, and the finance committee, service which has given her a wide scope on League activities and responsibilities. She has also held the office of corresponding secretary.

The former Miss Charlotte King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. King, she is listed as one of Atlanta's most popular young matrons and is a recognized leader in social and cultural circles. She is a graduate of Washington seminary and enjoyed wide popularity among the high school and college contingent. Attesting her popularity, Mrs. Hay served as secretary of the 1932-33 Debutante Club and was formally presented to Atlanta society at a brilliant reception given at the Piedmont Driving Club. She was recently elected president of the Mimosa Garden Club in which she has been an enthusiastic member for several years. Her husband is prominently identified with Bethlehem Steel Company. Erroll Jr. and Laura Hay are her children.

The League celebrated its silver anniversary this year and during the outstanding administration of Mrs. McCarty, the successful Silver Jubilee Follies were staged. Mrs. McCarty led the League to an enlarged civic program and she appointed a defense chairman to the board to care for the League's active participation in defense and war work.

Education chairman, Mrs. Ivan Allen Jr., informed the League that a course in typewriting will be conducted for League members. The class will begin in May.

Mrs. Everard Richardson Jr., speech school chairman, told of the Easter celebration which was given for the school children. She also told of the meeting of the speech school board held Monday in which the splendid progress of the school was noted.

Mrs. Gus Ashcraft, chairman of the Children's Theater Group, announced that the group had completed a very successful year. The group presented the play, "Titian," to an audience of 1,500 Atlanta and Fulton county school children.

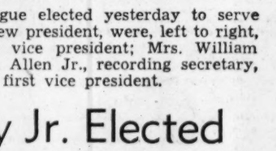

A registration was conducted at the conclusian of the meeting for Junior League members who had previously registered with the Civilian Defense Volunteer office. Mrs. Russell Bellman, defense chairman, announced that 30 members of the League have taken guests for dinner from the Naval Air Base. A radio program was given by six members of the League, who had completed the first aid class under the direction of Mrs. Wilmer Dutton, on the transportation of the injured.

Mrs. Berrien Moore Jr., radio chairman, told of the radio program given under the auspices of the Civilian Defense Volunteer office, in which Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Rutherford Ellis participated.

Announcement was made by Mrs. William Wellborn that the New York Junior Camera Club is having its third national photographic exhibit at the New York Junior League Club house, April 10-30. It is open to members of the Association and entries must be in by April 9. Mrs. Wellborn requested any League member who wished to enter the exhibit to get in touch with her immediately. The show will be judged by Adolf Fassdinder.

Mrs. Joel Hunter Jr., welfare chairman, announced that the bookbinding group is doing work for the Y. W. C. A.

Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Preston Wolff announce the birth of a son on April 5 at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Wolff is the former Miss Douscha Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Brown, of Marietta. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mrs. Bernard P. Wolff Sr. and the late Dr. Wolff.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Nicholson Jr. announce the birth of a son on April 4 at Crawford W. Long hospital, whom they have named Harold J. III. Mrs. Nicholson is the former Miss Carolyn Straub.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Oliver announce the birth of a daughter, Carole Davis, on March 31 at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Oliver is the former Miss Jessie Doris Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Kimsey Jones. Captain J. C. Oliver and the late Mrs. Oliver are the baby's paternal grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Shaw, of Forest Park, announce the birth of a son at Crawford Long hospital on March 31. Mrs. Shaw is the former Miss Avary Maxwell, of Carrollton.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Boswell announce the birth of a daughter, Ann O'Hara, on March 18, at Emory hospital. Mrs. Boswell is the former Miss Gertrude Profumo.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Donaldson Sr. announce the birth of a son, Thomas Henry Donaldson Jr., on March 26, at the Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Donaldson is the former Miss Ruby Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McClure, of Ben Hill, announce the birth of a daughter, Brenda Carole, on March 31, at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. McClure is the former Miss Caroline Weaver, of East Point. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. G. B. McClure, of Ben Hill, and her maternal grandmother is Mrs. Quinn Weaver, of East Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Benton announce the birth of a daughter, Elizabeth Jane, on April 4 at the Georgia Baptist hospital. Mrs. Benton is the former Miss Lucile Reeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Reeves, of Flowery Branch, Georgia.

Gun Classes Will Be Held Again Today

The second meeting of the Etchen School of Shooting in connection with the Civilian Defense Program will be held at the Capitol Gun Club Wednesday afternoon between 4 and 7 o'clock. The first class was held Wednesday, when a group of Girl Scouts were present for the free instruction. The classes are scheduled for each Wednesday afternoon this month.

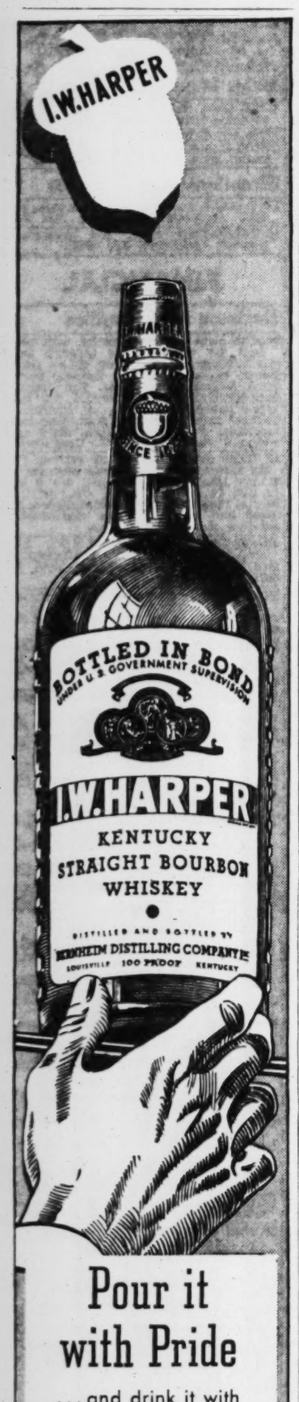

Etchen and the Capitol Gun Club in co-operation with the Civilian Defense Board are offering free instruction to the general public in the proper handling of shotguns, and the only cost will be for shells the individual fires.

As Etchen is recognized throughout the country as an authority on guns and an outstanding teacher, these classes afford the novice the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of his personal gun and shotguns in general.

Casting Classes Scheduled Today

The third weekly casting class, sponsored by the Atlanta Fly and Bait Casting Club, will be held at 3:30 this afternoon at Piedmont Park.

The classes have proven so popular that four new instructors have been added to the staff. In addition to Chris Stephens, Chester Huck, Bennett Hutchinson, Everett Roach and T. A. Kitchens will be on hand to handle the hundred or more expected to attend.

Versatile Richards

ANDERSON, S. C., April 7.—In thumbing through the baseball records I ran across Muscogee's double play mark of 137 in 1928, and it was of considerable interest since one of the infielders was listed as Paul Richards.

I asked the Cracker skipper about it, and he admitted he was the shortstop, and at various times during the season also played first and third. Fact is, he had a pitching record of two wins and no losses.

"You could go out at midnight and find the bases loaded; that explains why we made so many twin killings. Our pitchers kept the paths clogged.

"We made 137 double plays in 135 games, but we finished sixth in a six-team league. A double play is important in knocking runners off the bases, but it's no good after, say, half a dozen runs have been scored.

"New Orleans set a new Southern League double play record last year, but what did it matter? We won the pennant because we had first-rate pitching," Richards pointed out.

Dropping back to Muscogee, Richards had quite a year, besides his participation in a double play record. He led the Western League in home runs, with 36; in stolen bases, with 37; in total bases, runs scored, runs batted in, errors, strikeouts and assists.

Ted Gullic, who has been with Milwaukee lo these many years, was the regular first baseman on the Muscogee team. A kid named Spearmint Wax played third, and Delp, a rookie, was on second.

Day to Day

Frank Howard, Clemson coach, was one of the first on hand to greet Luke Sewell when he arrived with his St. Louis Browns today. Both are former Alabama athletes, of course.

Luke has done a fine job with the Browns. He is very pleased with the results of the spring campaign. The Browns, usually one of the back numbers of baseball, have won 15 and lost five, and rank second only to Pittsburgh in the combined Grapefruit League standings.

Manager Sewell was asked in a round-table radio discussion involving Manager Paul Richards and visiting writers if he thought this was his year.

"I don't think in terms of years," Sewell answered. "I figure it may be our day. I just operate from day to day, and do the best I can."

Asked who he thought would win the American League pennant, Sewell answered: "I would be awful different if I didn't take the Yankees. They look like the best team. But I wouldn't say they're a cinch; there are one or two other teams that may surprise everybody."

He failed to name them, but afterwards declared that the Chicago White Sox is one team, and the Red Sox of Boston, with improved pitching, is another.

"We're hopeful of making a greatly improved showing," Sewell added.

Rambert Ready

Pep Rambert, who'll pitch opening day against Chattanooga, aired his view over local radio and told the interviewer that, while he had been around in baseball, he still felt a little pressure over being chosen to start the season's initial game.

Pep's quite a character. He has hung a nickname of "Nick" on Charley Letchas, Greek second baseman, and it has struck a responsive chord among the Crackers.

The rookies never know how to take Rambert. One asked, in all seriousness, about Ty Cobb, if he were a left-handed thrower and what position he played.

"Why, he was so mean that when he shaved he'd hold a gun in his left hand, and if his right hand slipped he'd shoot it off. Bang. Just like that."

Long Called

Dale Livingston is the rookie of the week in the Cracker camp. Dale, with Savannah last year, is making a better showing than any of the youngsters. He has a fine chance of making the club if he keeps up the good work.

Down the Alleys

One of the most fascinating features about duckpin bowling is the element of luck contained in the game. Many big scores have been made possible by a lucky fly-back of a pin, many have been spoiled by the unlucky fly-backs for they work both ways.

It is rare occurrence to see a bowler, no matter how good he or she may be, get two or three strikes in a row without some luck entering into it. The game has never been reduced to a science.

A recount in the fastest men's league in the city, and by the fastest is meant that the highest average bowlers roll in the league, shows that no less than 118 games were lost by teams which bowled 560 or better. A total of 696 games have been bowled by these same eight teams, so the percentage of luck against these teams ran as high as 17 per cent. Against that unlucky item we have 80 instances where these same teams won games when they bowled under 560, or a percentage of 11.5 per cent. . . . When it is known that these eight teams have an actual team average of close to 560 in every instance, it can be seen that there is considerable luck in the game.

In this same league, Frank Hope threw in a big set of 398; Luke Darnell had 397 and Forrest Fowler had 395. Each of these men had big individual games, Hope with 161; Darnell with 150 and Fowler with 156. Model Laundry team crawled up into fourth place, after having climaxed a drive from the cellar with 21 wins out of the last 27 games.

Crackers Lose, Play Senators Here Today

Wynn Shares Hurling With McCullough

Two right-handers, Early Wynn and Bill McCullough, will take the mound for the Washington Senators against the Crackers here this afternoon. The game is scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock at Ponce de Leon park.

The Nats are riding the crest of 15 victories in 21 Grapefruit League contests, the best record compiled by any team. With the acquisition of Buck Newsom to their pitching staff, the Washington club has hopes of going places.

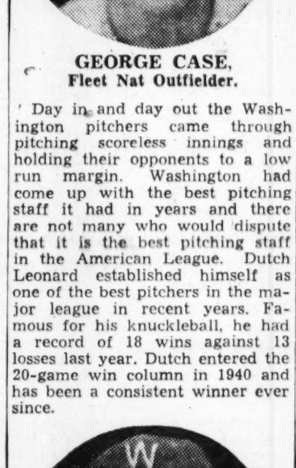

With the loss of Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis to Uncle Sam's armed forces, the Nationals' outlook for the 1942 campaign was very dismal. When the spring training season opened in Orlando, only two regular Washington players were at their old position: the fleetfooted George Case and their first base find of the 1941 campaign, Mickey Vernon. Fourteen of the Washington club's players had been drafted into the Army service.

As the spring training season progrssed, everyone was surprised to find that the little Cuban, Roberto Estalella, who had been placed on third, was doing a surprisingly good job fielding that position. Robert Repass, the young shortstop who was drafted by the Washington club from the American Association, began to look like a major league ball player.

GEORGE CASE,
Fleet Nat Outfielder.

Day in and day out the Washington pitchers came through pitching scoreless innings and holding their opponents to a low run margin. Washington had come up with the best pitching staff it had in years and there are not many who would dispute that it is the best pitching staff in the American League. Dutch Leonard established himself as one of the best pitchers in the major league in recent years. Famous for his knuckleball, he had a record of 18 wins against 13 losses last year. Dutch entered the 20-game win column in 1940 and has been a consistent winner ever since.

EMIL LEONARD
(Ex-Cracker Hurler)

Young Pitcher Early Wynn joined the Washington club last fall. He showed excellent speed, good control and the poise of a veteran pitcher. Winning four out of his five games with the Nationals. He lost one game to the Yankees being defeated by Pitcher Russo in a game, 1-0.

Fulton High Clips Rams in Opener

Fulton High got off to a flying start in the N. G. I. C. baseball league by defeating Richardson, 10 to 3, in the only loop game yesterday.

Decatur's scheduled opening tilt with Marietta was postponed until a later date. West Fulton, defending champs, were slated to meet Campbell High, but Campbell failed to appear. Whether the school will enter competition or drop out of the league is unknown.

In yesterday's game, Ralph Dennard, tiny Red Bird center fielder, connected for four singles in six times up. Kilgore had two for five, one a triple, and Smith had two for four to pace the Rams.

Tech Rally Nips 'Cats; Bulldogs Rout Clemson

By BERT PRATHER.

Georgia Tech made a clean sweep of the two-game series with the University of Kentucky nine by punching across a run in the last half of the ninth to win, 6 to 5, yesterday afternoon at Rose Bowl field.

Harold Castagnetta, pint-sized secondsacker, supplied the winning knock, a grass-clipping single directly through the hole between second and short to score Morris, Jacket catcher, who was occupying second base at the time.

The inning opened with Bonyai getting to first on Boehler's high throw. Morris then forced Bonyai and was credited with a stolen base as Gene Snyder fanned for the second out. Just as it began to look like an extra inning ball game Castagnetta came through with his game-winning poke.

Tech got off to a four-run advantage in the first four innings, but the Wildcats came back to tally three markers in the fifth and two more in the sixth. In the eighth the boys from the Flats shoved across a run on a single by Castagnetta, a fly to the outfield and an error by Mullins, Kentucky shortstop. This tally knotted the count at five-all.

Carlton Lewis, Tech's regular firstsacker, making his first start as a pitcher, went the route, and showed promise of developing into a real chunker. Marvin Akers, Wildcat basketball star, opposed him, and turned in a fine job.

Timely Clutch Hitting Aids Georgia in 13-6 Victory.

By F. M. WILLIAMS.

ATHENS, Ga., April 7.—Georgia hit in the clutches and won its fourth game of the year by defeating Clemson College here this afternoon, 13 to 6.

Coach J. V. Sikes' Bulldogs teed off on the southpaw offerings of Dalton Carpenter, starting Clemson hurler, and got him out of the box in the fourth inning after scoring 12 times on an equal number of hits.

Cliff Kimsey, although hit hard in the early innings, received credit for winning his third game of the season. He has not been defeated. Kimsey left the game at the end of the sixth frame with a lead of 12 to 3, and Jimmy Morrison, a rookie, took over.

Clemson's biggest threat was in the third inning when five successive singles were rapped out off Kimsey's offerings, but poor base running cost the Tigers heavily and they could score only twice.

Bobby Moore, Nub Welch and Charley Trippi led Georgia's attack. Moore had three singles and a double in four trips to the plate, knocking in three runs. Welch singled three times out of four attempts and Trippi had a single and a triple in five attempts.

Georgia goes to Atlanta Friday and Saturday of this week for a pair of games with Oglethorpe's Stormy Petrels.

Rucker Asks Post in Navy, Rumor Says

NEW YORK, April 7.—Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, has donated four ambulances to the American field service. . . . Some baseball fans still seem to think he should have donated Ted Williams. . . . But the boys in the southern Army camps don't agree. They've been giving Ted a big hand during his exhibition appearances.

Reports from Florida is that Johnny Rucker has applied for a Navy commission. That may explain why he didn't squawk when the Giants demoted him to Jersey City.

Druid Hills To Stage Visitors' Day Benefit

The ladies of the Druid Hills Golf Club will be hosts Friday to a benefit tournament for the Red Cross. It is visitors' day.

All club members are invited to play at Druid Hills as guests. The main event will be a flag tournament with defense stamps awards to winners in each division. Play starts at 10 o'clock.

V. O. Cain, Most Popular Fan, To Hurl First Ball on Friday

V. O. Cain, of 867 York avenue, is the most popular Cracker fan, and will have the honor of hurling the first ball on Friday at Ponce de Leon when the Crackers battle Chattanooga in the Southern League's opening day schedule.

Cain compiled 2,305 votes in the contest, more than double his nearest competitor. Cain's son left to join the Navy the day he filled out his blank for his father, and expressed a desire that "Pa" send him a picture showing him hurling the first ball. Now, everything will work out fine. Cain will also receive two season passes.

Second place in the contest went to Troy B. Stone, of 419 Boulevard, S. E. He had 1,089 votes. W. F. Atkins was third with 530 votes. S. W. Sharp, of 921 Marietta street, was fourth with 290 votes. E. L. Almand, of 564 Woodward avenue, was fifth with 133 votes.

Browns Blast 3 Home Runs To Win, 7-6

Atlanta Matches St. Louis Three, But Finishes Run Short.

By JACK TROY,
Constitution Sports Editor.

ANDERSON, S. C., April 7.—In a battle of home runs before 2,000 appreciative fans, the Crackers came out all even but finished a run behind in the game as the St. Louis Browns extended their sensational spring conquests, 7 to 6.

Today's was the 16th victory against five defeats for Luke Sewell's Browns in the Grapefruit League. But it was a case today of hanging on and hoping for the best.

Buddy Bates, Earl Browne and Charley Glock hammered home runs off the offerings of Bob Harris and Eldon Auker, while the Browns countered with four-base blasts by Harlond Clift, Red McQuillen, a former Cracker, and George McQuinn.

The Crackers went into the ninth trailing by two runs and Glock's smash over the left-field barrier was a parting shot that

Dot Fires 70 To Nip Tainter At 18th Hole

Crum Carries Louise to Last Green, But Bows 1-Up Also.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.

FOREST HILLS CLUB, AUGUSTA, Ga., April 7.—Never have I seen such golf and such a match as Georgia Tainter and I had today. We went to the 18th and I won by one up by sinking a long putt for a par four while Georgia had a five.

We halved the first hole and I lost the second to a par. The third was halved as was the 4th. I won the 5th with a birdie to even the match, but Georgia sank a chip shot on the 6th for a birdie three and I was one down again.

Then I took the short 7th with a par to be even again. The 8th and 9th were halved and we both shot 35's for the nine holes, the best score either of us ever had on this nine here.

We halved the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th before I won the 14th with a birdie. The 15th was halved and I was 1 up for the first time as we went to the 16th. I missed a short putt for a half here so Georgia won this hole to square things. We both took 5's on the long 17th and I chipped about seven feet from the cup on the par 4 18th while Georgia was short on her chip and missed her putt. I managed to sink mine for the win. I had a 35 coming in and Georgia a 36, giving me a 70 and Georgia a 71. This was the best golf that either one of us has played in a long, long time.

Louise Suggs had a good match with Jane Crum, too, with Louise winning on the 18th by one up also. She had Jane two down and two to go and missed a very short putt on the 17th, so they went to the 18th where Louise won with a five. Louise shot a 78 to Jane's 79.

The finals will be between Louise Suggs and me tomorrow. It will be for 18 holes. I hope I have some shots left over.

(The Associated Press lead on the Kirby-Tainter match ran as follows: Defending Champion Dorothy Kirby and Challenger Georgia Tainter played the greatest women's match in the history of the 12-year-old annual Forest Hills invitational tournament today with Miss Kirby firing a men's par 70 to win a semi-final match one-up.)

THE OLD MAN SPEAKS.

I never saw a city all these years.
But lately I've been wondering a lot
How places change when looked at through your tears.

I've tried the best I could—a job to do,
A kid to raise—a kid whose name was Bill,
Who'd pick up when I quit—when I was through—

Bill liked the idea, too, for Bill was shy,
A fellow who had never cared to go.
Above Rangoon or Darwin—I don't know.

By ROMNEY WHEELER.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 7.—(AP)—Sam Snead playing average Snead golf is an attraction on any course, but Sam Snead playing barefoot in the Augusta Masters golf tourney would be something cyclonic.

It was Freddie Corcoran's idea, and Sam seconded. He came off the fast Augusta National course today with a 68 in practice for the Masters, opening Thursday.

"You should kick off those shoes," suggested the P. G. A. tournament manager. "Remember, you played five holes in practice in your socks before the Canadian open last year, and won it."

Snead rolled up his slacks, doffed shoes and socks. Then he wiggled his toes in the soft grass.

"You know," he chuckled, "it sure feels good to get your feet on the ground. I used to play barefoot all the time back home on the goat course at Hot Springs, Va."

Then he walked to the first tee, and whipped a screaming drive down the fairway.

"Honestly, I'm telling you the truth," he said. "I feel better when I stand up to the ball in my bare feet. Those thick soled shoes keep you too far off the ground."

He was on the green in two, and dropped a putt from 3 feet for a birdie three.

"I haven't been as close to a hole in two for five years," he chortled as he retrieved the ball.

Hitting of Mize, Leiber Makes Ott Optimistic

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 7.—(AP)—With their game against the Cleveland Indians cancelled because of weather conditions today, the New York Giants honored the memory of John J. McGraw on the anniversary of his birth with a barbecue.

Manager Mel Ott, one of the last stars developed by McGraw, said he wasn't too perturbed about the present club despite its poor record in spring games because of recent batting outbursts by Johnny Mize and Hank Leiber.

Russell Trackmen Upset Tech High

Jimmy Stancill, Wildcat star, took top scoring honors with 15 points. He won first place in the 100, 220 and 440 besides running a leg on the relay team.

Roy Heath, a sprinter, and Tom Camp, broad jumper, the only two experienced men on the Tech High squad have been named captain and alternate captain, respectively. The Smithies will clash with Boys' High Friday at Henry Grady Field.

The results:
100-Yard Dash—Won by Stancill (R).
440-Yard Run—Won by Stancill (R).

Mississippi Sports Safe for Present

JACKSON, Miss., April 7.—(AP) Intercollegiate sports competition by Mississippi's public schools will not be discontinued for the present, but the issue will depend entirely on the fans' support of the fall football program, a committee of the State College Board decided today.

A proposal that competitive sports be abandoned immediately for the duration of the war was shelved by the investigating committee in favor of a new policy making all athletic expenditures, including practically the whole fund for coaching salaries, depend entirely on gate receipts.

Fields Captures East Lake Bogey

Mrs. C. D. Fields scored an 88 to take first place in the blind bogey golf tournament of the Atlanta Women's Golf Association held at East Lake yesterday. Mrs. W. H. Pollard had an 87 for second place, and Mrs. W. B. Smith was third with a net 86.

Homing Pigeon Is Rescued Here

E. W. Jones, chief clerk at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, rescued a homing pigeon which flew into his yard yesterday afternoon. The pigeon wore a band with the number AU39X4313 and was slightly injured. The owner can get in touch with Mr. Jones by phoning MA. 1504 or by calling at his residence, 727 McDonough boulevard, S. Shively Backs Plan To Play Frosh in Fall

Kentucky Director Expects Conference To Adopt Yearling Rule.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Bernie Shively, Kentucky's genial director of athletics, yesterday added his name to the growing list of Southeastern Conference heads who believe freshmen will be allowed to participate in varsity football next fall.

The question will be decided when the conference meets with Athletic Commissioner Mike S. Conner in Birmingham, April 17. From all reports, schools are overwhelmingly in favor of the plan for the duration and it appears it will be passed without as much wrangling as anticipated.

Here for the Wildcats' two baseball games with Georgia Tech, Shively said he favors the idea. "It's not a case of whether we like it or not," he remarked, "but it's going to be a case of necessity."

Shively and Coach Alexander of Tech were talking things over and both agreed there are few freshmen capable of making the varsity in normal times. Both remarked their schools didn't have anybody they thought could make the grade right off the handle.

However, they believe things are going to be a lot tougher come September and a lot of the boys now in school will be in the Army, making it necessary to play anybody you can get your hands on.

Coach Alex has drawn up a round-robin schedule for conference football teams and this idea also will be discussed during the meeting. Under the plan, schools which carry on ancient rivalries with two or three other members would play these games every year. But the rest of the teams would be played every other year.

The schedule was drawn up after several years of agitation by members of the Big Twelve for such a plan. It would decide the real football champion in a manner the Pacific Coast conference uses—i. e., each team playing every other in the league. The title now is won by the team with the best percentage of games won and lost, regardless of the schedule.

The new proposal was mailed to athletic directors for study before the meeting. Shively favored the idea and indicated Kentucky will support it.

Shively gave us some good-natured ribbing about a story we wrote before the conference basketball tournament, blasing officials for giving Kentucky a rose-strewn path to the finals while making it tough on Tech and Georgia, who had to play Alabama and Tennessee in the first round for the second straight year.

Browns Beat Crackers, 7-6

left Atlanta a run in arrears in a colorful contest.

Ed Nowak and Jim Mertz gave up only nine hits between them, but four of them were for extra bases. The Crackers secured eight hits of which Glock and Browne had two each. McQuinn's three safeties topped the Brown offense.

Manager Paul Richards announced officially today that Pep Rambert would start Friday's opener against Chattanooga, and Pep said he was ready.

Richards feels pretty good about the way the club has been playing against major league opposition. As against Brooklyn Sunday, today's game could have gone either way.

Nowak started well, disposing of the first two batters in the game, but he turned around and walked McQuinn and Cullenbine and Laabs singled to left, scoring McQuinn.

In a rather weird inning, the Crackers scored a run to go ahead in the second. O'Brien walked and Richards singled. Both moved up on Blakeney's sacrifice. Nowak grounded to Stephens and O'Brien beat the throw to the plate. Thomassie singled to center and Richards was thrown out at the plate by Laabs.

A two-run rally put the Browns back on top in the third. Clift walked and McQuinn doubled past Browne. Letchas threw out Cullenbine as Clift scored. Laabs flied to Bates and McQuinn scored after the catch.

Glock walked and O'Brien scored him with a clutch single after two were out to even the count at three-all in the Cracker part of the third.

The Browns doubled the score on the Crackers with a brace of homers in the fifth. Clift measured the left-field fence as lead-off man. McQuinn singled and was forced by Cullenbine, who in turn was forced by Laabs. Then McQuillen pounded one out of the park.

Browne's homer, scoring Glock, who had singled with two out, put the Crackers back in the game and only a run shy of a tie in the 7th.

With two away, McQuinn hit a homer to increase the Browns' advantage in the ninth. Glock's ninth-inning smash left the Crackers a lone run behind.

AROUND Atlanta

WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

Proclaiming April 20-25 as humane week, the Governor yesterday called on citizens to co-operate with humane societies in fostering humanitarian values and in protecting birds and animals.

Dr. Dwight J. Bradley, executive director of the Council for Social Action of Congregational Churches, tonight will address students of Morehouse College. His address, on "The Church and Race Relations in the World Today," will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Atlantic Steel Company Saturday will be host to the Birmingham District Section of the Association of Iron and Steel Engineers. An inspection tour of the plant will begin at 1:30 o'clock, to be followed by a technical session at the Henry Grady hotel at 3:30 o'clock. This will be addressed by R. W. Sandelin, chief metallurgist of the Atlanta Steel Company. A dinner will follow the session.

Olympia Diaz, of Atlanta, president of the Recreation Association, and Florence Finney, of Haddock, vice president, were announced yesterday as delegates of the Georgia State College for Women to the Wellesley, Mass., convention of the National Association of College Women tomorrow through Saturday.

Directors of the Atlanta Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants will hold a board meeting at 12:30 o'clock today in Parlor E at the Robert Fulton hotel.

Mass meeting in the interest of Civilian Defense will be held at 8:30 o'clock tonight at Westminster Presbyterian church. Mrs. Wallace Wright, of England, in the United States engaged in war relief work, and Dr. Ferguson Wood, pastor of the church, will speak on various phases of defense work.

Bank clearings yesterday were $4,700,000 greater than the total for the corresponding day last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association reported. Total was $13,800,000.

National Office Management Association will meet at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Atlanta Athletic Club with E. T. Downham presenting a program on "Your Office Problems."

City Slickers will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at 124 Atlanta avenue, Decatur. The Home Guard will be discussed and the public is invited.

Friends of Israel Prayer League will meet at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Baptist Tabernacle. The Rev. Jesse L. Henderson will speak.

At the City Hall

Captain Wyont Bean, of the 179th field artillery and former assistant to Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, was a visitor at the city hall yesterday. He is on leave from his post in Mississippi.

Mayor Lyle yesterday began a study of measures passed to him from Monday's meetings of city council and the aldermanic board. He is expected to begin action on them today.

Church News

The second quarterly conference of St. Mark Methodist church will be held tonight during the church night meeting. Dr. Wallace Rogers will preside. Upon adjournment of the conference, the board of stewards will hold its monthly meeting with J. Tom Smith presiding.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

Another Suit Filed Against State Milk Law

Linder Attacks Proposal To Form Independent Control Board.

Another test of the Georgia milk law was under way yesterday as Wesley R. Asinof, Atlanta lawyer, filed a suit in Fulton superior court attacking it on the ground that it violates both federal and state constitutions forbidding passage of statutes "impairing the obligations of contracts."

Another development in the milk situation yesterday was the issuance by Tom Linder, commissioner of agriculture, of a statement denouncing the proposal to set up an independent milk control board by the city of Atlanta. He declared the authors of this agitation not only want low-grade milk, but are already selling it to Atlanta consumers.

Monopoly Charged.

Suing as a citizen and milk consumer, Asinof contends the State Milk Control Board and its director, Charles G. Duncan, are operating a combination of dairies throughout the state, fixing the price of milk and cream, and that the statute under which they operate has created a monopoly in restraint of trade. He alleges he and other consumers are unable, and will be unable, to buy milk and cream at a price agreed upon between them and the milk dealers, and asks that the board be restrained from interfering with the price of milk. Judge Paul S. Etheridge ordered a hearing on the petition April 17.

The statute creating the Milk Control Board already has been upheld four times by the state supreme court.

East Point Protest.

Another protest against the state board's action in raising the price of milk in the Atlanta milk shed by one cent per quart last Monday was made yesterday by the city council of East Point in adopting a resolution drawn up by City Attorney Ezra Phillips. The protest was made at the request of the East Point Woman's Club, which commended the Atlanta Consumers' Council for its fight against higher milk prices.

It has been estimated that Monday's one-cent increase in the Atlanta area will amount to about $438,000 annually.

In his statement, Commissioner Linder said both his department and the dairymen not only favor as stringent control of milk as Atlanta already has practiced, but even stricter control.

Samples Analyzed.

"The people who have been sponsoring an independent milk control for the city," the statement went on, "have had a great deal to say about dairymen selling unwholesome and dirty milk. Let's see who has been furnishing the dirty milk and the unwholesome milk. During the first week of April, inspectors of the Department of Agriculture picked up from city delivery trucks samples from 15 plants delivering milk in Atlanta. These samples were analyzed by the state chemist. Most of this milk had been pasteurized, or at least was supposed to have been pasteurized.

"The samples taken from six of these plants showed less than 50,000 bacteria count. The samples from nine showed an average of 307,777 bacteria. The lowest count of any one of the nine was 87,000 and the highest 1,440,000. Under the law, pasteurized milk is not permitted to show more than 30,000 bacteria and raw milk more than 50,000. Yet, here we have samples from nine plants showing an average of 307,777 bacteria and no one ever heard of city inspectors closing up or revoking a plant's permit to sell milk in Atlanta."

Linder said no official of his department ever had protested against rigid inspection laws and the only protest has been against city inspectors arbitrarily denying the dairymen a right to sell their products without just cause.

HONOR ARKWRIGHT—Employes of the Georgia Power Company yesterday journeyed to the Druid Hills home of Preston Arkwright and paid him tribute for the 40 years he has headed the Georgia Power Company and its parent companies. They presented him with this hand-painted portrait of his father, Thomas Arkwright. The portrait is by Charles Naegele. All company employes contributed toward the portrait, no employe giving more than 15 cents. They also presented the power company official with autographs of all employes. With the portrait are Arthur D. Perkins, W. L. Rolader and Harry Flynn, veteran power company employes.

Women Radio Operators Ask War Sea Duty

Girls Anxious To Do Bit Toward Victory, Says Union Official.

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

Adventure-minded damsels who chafe at the idea of holding down nice safe inland jobs while the boys cop off the dangerous—and exciting — assignments in this war, may soon go out to meet danger on the deep.

Women radio operators might well man the communications equipment of freighters and transport ships plowing the seas with men and materials of war, thinks Mrs. Josephine Timms, secretary-treasurer of the American Communications Association.

And the association, an organization of telegraph and radio operators, is unofficially "toying with the idea," Mrs. Timms said yesterday as she prepared for the arrival of 200 members to attend the association conference here.

Women Getting Ready.

"Of course, we've taken no action on such a plan," Mrs. Timms, a veteran telegraph operator on leave of absence from her job in New York, said. "There would undoubtedly need to be some consideration of the problem of sending a woman or two to sea with a boatload of men, but I personally believe women operators can handle the job. If the time ever comes when the Army needs the men operators more than the Merchant Marine and they stop deferring them, I believe our union will indorse the plan of replacing them with women."

Meanwhile, women are busy preparing themselves to take over the shore jobs of men telegraph and radio operators to relieve them for service on the high seas. The industry is 70 per cent women and the union has about 50 per cent woman leadership, Mrs. Timms said.

Mrs. Timms entered the communications field as an operator back in 1918, when there was a need for girls in the service.

Convene Tomorrow.

"I was a big husky girl and looked like I could take it," chuckled Mrs. Timms yesterday in a reminiscent mood. "One day they picked out a dozen of the biggest and strongest girls to train them as trouble-shooters. I was in the group and had just reached the point where I could carry a perforator and repair a teletype when the war ended and they had no further need of girls in such jobs."

Although there are still no girl operators on ships at sea, there is a move in Detroit to train them as aircraft radio operators for duty on behind-the-lines transports.

Fifteen men marine telegraph operators, most of whom have seen action at sea in the war, will be in Atlanta tomorrow to represent 1,200 fellow marine operators at a two-day conference at the Ansley hotel. The executive board will meet Saturday and the week-long convention of telegraphers and radio operators will begin Monday.

LET GIRLS GO TO SEA!—Let 'em go as marine radio operators and release the men for combat duty, suggests Mrs. Josephine Timms, veteran telegraph operator, who got her start in the last World War. She's here for the convention of the American Communications Union.

Money in Circulation Sets Another Record

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Money in circulation set another new record of $11,572,671,881—an average of $86.26 per person—during March.

The figure was calculated by the Treasury on the basis of March 31 statistics. This average was 59 cents more than the end of February and $19.11 more than a year ago.

DUTCH WEST INDIES.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Dutch West Indies, April 7.—(AP)—The Dutch government is taking all possible military measures in the Dutch West Indies in view of the "serious possibility" that these islands may be involved directly in new hostilities, Governor G. J. J. Wouters announced today to the legislative council.

Shipwreck Kelly Falls Five Feet From Flagpole

FORT LEE, N. J., April 7.—(AP) Alvin (Shipwreck) Kelly, who never seemed to have any trouble getting 100 or more feet into the sky and staying there for the edification of the gapers of the '20s, has found five feet too much.

Kelly, of flagpole-sitting notice, started to paint a flagpole at an amusement park yesterday and came tumbling down after getting a mere five feet off base.

He was in fair condition at Englewood hospital today with three broken ribs and a red face.

INTELLECTUALS SEIZED.

VICHY, April 7.—(AP)—The arrest of 10 of "the most illustrious" members of the five French honorary academies in Paris was reported by Monday afternoon's Paris Midi which arrived here today. The intellectuals were held three days, the newspaper said, after numerous illegal mimeographed leaflets were found in their possession during raids on their homes.

Atlantan Writes About Langley, Pecos Sinkings

Both Ships Shot From Under Local Woman's Kin.

Details of the sinking of the aircraft tender Langley and the naval tanker, Pecos, and the story of how the writer dived from the flight deck of the carrier into the water only to be bombed again while serving on the second ship, was dramatically told in a letter received here yesterday by Mrs. J. M. Frankel, 93 Peachtree street.

The leter from Ensign Lanson B. Ditto Jr., nephew of the Atlanta woman, said five direct hits were scored on the Langley by the three waves of Jap bombers which swept over the ship.

"When the Langley was given up for lost I had to dive from the flight deck into the water," Ditto said in the letter. "We were picked up by an accompanying destroyer and transferred to the ill-fated tanker Pecos."

It was while serving on this ship that Ditto suffered shrapnel wounds and burned feet.

"The Jap attack on the Pecos lasted for four hours," he said. "After it was sent to the bottom, I stayed in the water seven hours before being picked up by another destroyer." The Naval officer said that he managed to stay afloat with a life belt.

Ditto, now in San Francisco, indicated in his letter that he had been to Australia before coming to the states for what he termed "re-outfitting." He was assigned to the Langley a year ago last month.

4 Men Are Indicted In Truck Tire Thefts

Theft of truck tires valued at $750 was charged to four men indicted yesterday by the Fulton county grand jury. Joseph Porter, Robert Smith and Walter A. Echols were alleged to have stolen tires valued at $350 from the International Harvester Company at 550 Whitehall street on February 26. Porter, Echols and J. T. Rogers, in another indictment, were charged with the theft of $400 worth of tires from the same firm on March 30.

Many Atlantans Get Washington Secretary Jobs

Group To Fill Positions in Capitol's War Agencies.

An Army of women from all parts of the United States, will trek to Washington this week to take their places as stenographers in war agencies, speeding the production of material to the men who man the guns.

A large number of Atlanta women, according to the United States Civil Service District headquarters here, will join the parade of war workers taking their places behind the desks of a nation at war.

Rate of pay for these positions begins at $120 a month, and opportunities for advancement are considered excellent. These stenographers must be able to take dictation at the rate of 96 words a minute, and examinations testing their qualifications will be given immediately and frequently. Special examinations will be held at 7 o'clock Tuesday night at Crichton's Business College, 66 Plaza way, N. E.

Further information may be procured by contacting the Civil Service Information Section, 327 Federal Annex, (new post office), Atlanta, immediately.

Scout Leaders Attend Athens Training School

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LAGRANGE, Ga., April 7.—The 30 Boy Scout leaders from the Chattahoochee Area Council of Boy Scouts who attended the recent two-day Scout leadership training school held at the University of Georgia, at Athens, included Tom Morgan, executive of the council; L. L. Stanley and Duncan McIntosh, field executives, heading the delegation, whose members were enrolled in the four classes offered.

Others taking the course from this section were: the Rev. E. P. Kendall, E. A. Bailey, Horace Irwin Jr., Billy Muldrew, Frank Hutchinson, J. E. Mathews, Milan Willis, F. M. Chalker, all of LaGrange; Hugh Allan, of West Point; the Rev. W. C. Foster, George Foster, Bruce Harrison, of Lanett, Ala.; Frank Fuller, Lance Frazier, of Langdale, Ala.; L. F. Underwood, Luther Scales, of Shawmut, Ala.; Homer Badfield, Hoyt Hancock, George Harris, Lamarr Kitchens, of Fairfax, Ala.; Bob Harding, Riverview, Ala.; the Rev. L. Kelly, Garfield Heard, the Rev. M. L. Young, of Roanoke, Ala.; Tom Durham, of Manchester.

Silence Slogan Is Adopted by Navy Mothers

'Seal Your Lips and Protect Our Ships' Is Their Motto.

The glamorous movie spies who permit their fingernails to be plucked out by the roots before they divulge dangerous information about their loves, are sissies compared to Atlanta Navy Mothers.

Informed yesterday that mothers attending the organization's national convention had adopted as their slogan, "Seal Your Lips and Protect Our Ships!" Atlanta mothers of men who go down to the sea in ships individually fell in line with the program of silence.

Stops "Bragging."

"When our son gets on a ship, that's our cue to start talking about what a sweet baby he was or what good grades he made in school," remarked a Navy mother at the club's headquarters in the Kimball House. "I stop war-time bragging about his accomplishments until I know he's safe again."

"It's a good slogan and a wise one," commented Mrs. M. H. Flaum, of 25 Park circle, and then added with a smile, "but I'm lucky—I can still brag. My boy is in this country. He's an instructor at the radio school in California—and he graduated highest in his class with a grade of 90.36!"

Complete Secrecy.

But when 21-year-old Seaman First Class Manning Herman Flaum Jr., is ordered to a new job of any kind, Mrs. Flaum pledges herself to complete secrecy. She is sure that when other mothers hear of the plan they will join in and the local group will take action collectively when Mrs. Amy Grantham and Mrs. Mary Harrisoon, commander and adjutant of the club, return from the Kansas City convention.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Flaum, the club's finance officer, thinks it's a good idea to keep Hitler's ears in mind when you talk over the telephone. Party lines are prevalent in these days of priorities on straight lines and there's no telling when mothers exchanging a bit of confidential news of the boys over the phone may be giving unfriendly powers welcome assistance.

Daring U. S. Sub Sinks Two Jap Vessels

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—A daring American submarine, striking directly at Japanese shipping in the hazardous waters of the China sea, has sunk two merchant vessels totaling 15,000 tons, the Navy announced tonight.

It was the third Navy communique in four days dealing with the successes of the far-ranging American underseas raiders against the extended Japanese supply lines. The three announcements listed 12 Japanese vessels, including two light cruisers, as sunk or damaged.

The latest victims were identified as a 10,000-ton combination cargo and passenger ship and a 5,000-ton cargo vessel. Yesterday, the Navy disclosed that two submersibles had sunk three Japanese ships. One raider sent two heavily-laden tankers to the bottom near the Caroline islands, just east of the Philippines, while the other blasted a freighter in Japanese waters.

The report was made in Communique No. 68 which said:

"China Sea.—1. Information has just been received that a United States submarine while on an extended patrol in the China sea has sunk two Japanese merchant vessels.

"2. One of these ships was a combination passenger and cargo vessel of approximately 10,000 tons. The second was a cargo ship of about 5,000 tons.

"3. These sinkings have not been reported in any previous Navy Department communique.

"4. There is nothing to report from other areas."

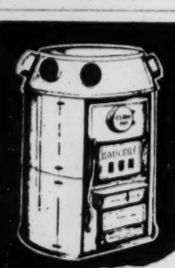

ACTIVITY OVER GIBRALTAR.

LONDON, April 7.—(AP)—The Vichy news agency said today in a La Linea dispatch that there was intense British air activity over Gibraltar this morning. Aircraft of every class were said to have taken part in maneuvers of considerable scope.

FOR WAR ECONOMY Let MONCRIEF

Put YOUR Furnace in Shape for the Duration

It is today of vital importance that your home be kept in good repair for wartime economy. The war has already greatly decreased home building and suitable dwellings are now much in demand. Even though WPB order L-31 stopped the sale of gas furnaces February 28th, you can still get coal heating equipment to keep your home warm and comfortable. If your furnace is old or does not heat properly, it should be checked at once so that the necessary repairs or adjustments can be made to assure economical heat for the duration. Repair parts or replacements are available, so call today for a free check on your heating system. Small down payment—balance in 18 months.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting-up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
